

Clintonville Youth Killed, 11 Injured in Shawano Collision

Terrence Turner, Driver of Car Carrying Seven, Dies of Injuries

SHAWANO—A rural Clintonville youth was killed and 11 Shawano and Shawano county teenagers were injured in a two-car collision six miles north of here at 1 a.m. today.

Dead is Terrence Turner, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Turner, route 1, Clintonville. Turner died of skull injuries received when the car he was driving collided with a car driven by Alan Lanpenin, 17, route 2, Shawano, at the exit of the Shawano County Park road and County Trunk H.

The youths, all of whom were thrown from the vehicles, were taken to Shawano Community Hospital by four ambulances. Turner died at the hospital several hours after the accident. Eight of the youths were released after treatment or reported in satisfactory condition but held for observation.

In Serious Condition

Lanpenin was listed in serious condition with chest injuries. Others receiving serious injuries include Judy Maleig, 18, Caroline, a passenger in the Turner vehicle, and Debra Marks, 18, route 2, Shawano, a passenger in the Lanpenin vehicle, both with broken legs.

According to the Shawano County Sheriff Department, the Turner vehicle was being driven north on the park exit road when it collided with the Lanpenin vehicle, driven east on County Trunk H. Both cars were demolished, the sheriff's department said.

Passengers in the Turner car who were released from the hospital or reported in satisfactory condition include: Connie Bohr, 17, Marion; Patricia Riemer, 17, Clintonville; Sandra Behnke, 17, route 2, Clintonville; Karen Hintz, 17, Marion; and Peter Smith, 19, Clintonville.

Lanpenin Vehicle

Others in the Lanpenin vehicle who received minor injuries include: Donna Newton, 18; Claude Gast, 19; and Alan Uelman, 18, all of route 2, Shawano.

Red Germans Say U. S. Car Tried to Run Down Guard

BERLIN (AP)—Communist East Germany says a U.S. Army sedan drove into an East German street near the border area Sunday, disregarded traffic signs and tried to run down the leader of an East German patrol.

ADN, the official East German news agency, gave this version Wednesday night of an incident in which the U.S. Army said an East German border guard slapped an American officer. The Communist version did not mention the slapping.

ADN said the patrol leader jumped aside but the American car hit him, then backed out of the border area.

Industrial Output Shows New Increase

WASHINGTON (AP)—Factories turned out more automobiles, furniture and other consumer items last month to help increase industrial production for the 10th straight month. The output of business equipment also advanced.

The Federal Reserve Board reported Wednesday its index of industrial production, the output of factories, mines and utilities, rose during June from 131.2 to 131.8 per cent of the 1957-59 average. The index was 125.5 a year ago.

The May figure of 131.2 also represented an upward revision based on additional information. It had been reported earlier as 130.3.

Reds Reported Routed In Attempt at Ambush

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The Vietnamese government said today its forces turned an attempted Viet Cong ambush in the Mekong River delta Tuesday into a bloody rout of the Communists.

More than 100 Viet Cong attackers were killed, a government announcement said. Vietnamese losses were listed at 17 dead and 30 wounded. American authorities said they could not immediately confirm the figures.

Saigon's Defense Ministry said the battle was fought in a flat ricefield of Vinh Binh Province 30 miles southwest of Saigon. The sector has been relatively quiet in recent weeks.

Goldwater to Fight 'Clean, Conservative Campaign'

Miller to Be Given 2nd Place

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona Wednesday night pledged a vigorous but clean campaign against President Johnson in November.

Goldwater said he would campaign "on the issues solely" and that he would not engage in "a personal attack."

He thanked his campaign workers and said he "can't find words to express the feeling that is in my heart. No greater honor can come to any Republican."

Miller Will be Running Mate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—New York Rep. William E. Miller is Sen. Barry Goldwater's choice for vice president on the 1964 Republican ticket, it was announced today.

Goldwater's press aide Ed Nellor said the selection of Miller would be presented at the Republican state chairmen's meeting today by California GOP Leader William F. Knowland.

The choice of Miller, who has been chairman of the Republican National Committee, is expected to be ratified quickly by the Republican National Convention. The convention delegates customarily follow exactly the wishes of the presidential nominee.

Goldwater said he is holding a meeting of all 30 state chairmen this morning, and will meet with the national committee Thursday to confer on steps to unify the party.

Message to Scranton
New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, former rival for the GOP presidential nomination, was the first visitor to pay a call on the Arizona senator after his victory.

Gov. Scranton was the next caller. Goldwater also sent a telegram to Scranton immediately after the convention decision, expressing appreciation for Scranton's unity plea to the delegates and urging that they work together for victory over the Democrats in the fall elections.

Laotian Reds Hit At Stronghold

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Pro-Communist forces today launched an attack against the last neutralist stronghold position on the northwestern fringe of the Communist-held Plaines des Jarres, a Defense Ministry spokesman said.

The communique reported the attack was against a small, isolated post which straddles the vital east-west Route 9, leading from the plain. It is 110 miles north of Vientiane.

Sen. Barry Goldwater
Republican Presidential Nominee

Politicians See Groundswell In Wisconsin for Goldwater

Strong Support Other Than Party Regulars Noted for Arizonan

BY JAMES BARTELT

Post-Crescent News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — The Wisconsin delegation to the National Republican Convention provided all its 30 votes for the presidential nomination of Sen. Barry Goldwater Wednesday night. Pro-Goldwater supporters outside the normal state GOP organization were pointed to as a big reason.

(The Badger state's 30 votes were too far down the line alphabetically to figure prominently in handing Goldwater the party's presidential nomination, about 800 persons who wrote "We were nine states too late, but what are you going to do when you live in one that starts with a W?" asked State Chairman Talbot Peterson of Appleton.)

Agreement on this point came from Warren Knowles, candidate for governor, Wilbur Reink, senatorial candidate, and Peterson, all of whom were voting delegates. After the Wisconsin decision was announced, a closed caucus voted 95-4 for Goldwater over Gov. William Scranton, and all 30 votes went into the Goldwater roll call Wednesday night under a unanimous agreement to award them to the candidate who got the most votes in secret balloting.

Strong Undercurrent

Knowles, who said he voted for Goldwater, said he has detected a groundswell of something I have not seen in my 20 years of political life for the GOP nominee in Wisconsin.

There is a strong undercurrent of conservatism in our state, almost revolutionary in its present trend. I heard from names I do not recognize as directly affiliated with the Republican organization as such.

Knowles said many of the letters came from the Green Bay-Delafield area. While he expects Gov. John Reynolds to make Goldwater an issue in the fall election, Knowles said he was not concerned because he has never been a coal-tail rider and will run on his own programs and philosophy.

Peterson agreed that Goldwater's other battle coming up for ter's dedicated following was his greatest contribution to the Republican effort this fall in Wisconsin.

"I think it's obvious that Sen. Goldwater has developed an organization at the grass roots level which won the primary for him in California, and it is the same devoted dedicated grass roots effort that will carry him to victory in Wisconsin and the rest of the nation," he said.

Peterson said the Republican Wisconsin organization would throw the challenge back to Goldwater in a form letter to about 800 persons who wrote "We were nine states too late, but what are you going to do when you live in one that starts with a W?" asked State Chairman Talbot Peterson of Appleton.

Didn't Receive Fair Trial

Federal Judge Orders Release of Sam Sheppard From Ohio Prison

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, the "Doe-bow trial" man, was ordered released today by U.S. District Judge Carl A. Weinman in Dayton ruled Wednesday that the 40-year-old Bay Village suburbanite was denied his constitutional rights in his 1954 trial in Cleveland. The trial resulted in his conviction in the bludgeoning slaying of Marilyn Sheppard.

Judge Weinman said Sheppard's custody is "void" and if Cuyahoga County or the state takes no action within 60 days the release becomes final.

Weinman's 86-page decision denounced the coverage given the case by three Cleveland newspapers and also mentioned three nationally known radio commentators and columnists. The judge, acting on a request for a writ of habeas corpus, ordered Sheppard's release under $10,000 bond.

But the former osteopath, who has been away from a possible parole, appears to have no other battle coming up for

Arizona Senator Wins Nomination 23 Minutes After Roll Call Starts

BY JACK BELL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—

Republicans have roared approval of Sen. Barry Goldwater as their presidential nominee and he vows to carry "the conservative cause" to the American voters in November.

The 55-year-old grandson of a Jewish peddler who emigrated to California from London ground moderate Republicans under his steamroller as he pushed to a first-ballot victory Wednesday night.

Decision in 23 Minutes

Twenty-three minutes after the call of the states began, Goldwater became the nominee by a vote of 655 to 100.

By a motion of Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, his leading opponent, the nomination was made officially unanimous—but it wasn't quite.

In the midst of the confusion, Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, the convention chairman, told a reporter that he had been informed Goldwater had called Rep. William E. Miller of New York, the GOP national chairman, had offered him the vice presidential nomination, and that Miller had accepted.

"Favorably Inclined"

But Goldwater and Miller both appeared on television later to say that it wasn't quite as buttoned up as Morton had said it was.

Goldwater said he hadn't promised Miller to ask him to accept second place on the ticket, as had been reported. But he added that he is "favorably inclined" toward the upstate New York representative.

Miller, also appearing on television, said he thinks that after a meeting of Goldwater with state chairmen today some definitive announcement on the vice presidential nomination, which he said he would accept, would be forthcoming. The vice presidential nominee will be formally elected at tonight's closing session.

Known as Fighter

Miller, 44 and a Roman Catholic, would be calculated to bring to the ticket a skilled campaigner noted for his rough and tumble political battling. Goldwater has designated him as "a gut fighter."

The new GOP presidential nominee is an Episcopalian. He still holds an interest in swank retail clothing stores in Arizona.

The senator demonstrated iron control of the party and the convention in contrast to four years ago when, in withdrawing his name from consideration for the nomination, he urged conservatives not to desert the GOP.

This time, it was the party's moderates and liberals who had to march into the glaring lights on the podium to urge their supporters not to take a walk. The pendulum had swung to the right in three four years.

The single roll call, pursued to the end in the overcrowded Cow

Palace, showed the overwhelming manner in which the Arizona senator had made his views popular with the 1,300 delegates.

The count showed Goldwater 653 and Scranton 214.

At this point a chipper and smiling Scranton appeared dramatically to walk the long length of the platform to the rostrum where, framed in the lights and in the eye of the television cameras, he moved to make Goldwater's nomination unanimous. The hall burst at the seams with the thunder of approval.

Appeals for Unity

Recalling that four years previously Goldwater had stood where he was, Scranton, his face solemn for the moment, told the delegates that the time

Press Abroad Worries Over Nomination

Sees Reaction in U. S. And Expresses Fears For World's Peace

LONDON (AP)—The nomination of Sen. Barry Goldwater aroused editorial apprehensions in Britain and most of Europe today.

Government officials refrained from public comment, but newspapers in general described the choice of the Arizona senator as a victory for the forces of reaction and a threat to world peace.

Bitterest of all, predictably, was the Communist press.

Pravda, the organ of the Soviet Communist party, said Goldwater was running on the "most reactionary, bellicose and adventurist pre-election platform in American history."

Adverse Criticism

The Moscow paper Sovetskaya Rossiya declared that Goldwater was backed by a coalition "consisting of the most aggressive capitalist groups, racist, trade union opponents, crusaders of anti-communism and Ku Klux Klanners."

There were hard words for the GOP standard-bearer from anti-Communist journals of Western Europe as well.

Stockholm's Liberal Expressen, the biggest daily in Scandinavia, described the nomination as "a catastrophe for the Republic, a threat against the United States, a danger to the world."

Copenhagen's Liberal Ekstra-Bladet asserted:

"Blackest Reaction"

"The blackest reaction won the battle in the Cow Palace. The progressive forces that have ruled in the Republican party since 1940 were trampled down under hooves this morning."

Said Oslo's Liberal Dagbladet: "Those who once made up the 'Eisenhower wing' within the Republican party have suffered a catastrophic defeat, which also will turn out to be a catastrophe for the party itself. With Goldwater as its political general it will meet its Waterloo in November."

"I want to see if Peggy cries," the nominee explained.

Peggy is the senator's wife who has stuck by him through his long and arduous campaign. She was in the Cow Palace, the convention site, while the senator watched the television screen at a top-floor suite in a downtown San Francisco hotel about two miles away.

Appears Relaxed

Ed Nellor, Goldwater's press secretary, said that just as the roll call passed the 688 vote needed to give Goldwater the nomination, the Arizona turned from one television set to another with the aim of getting a better view of his wife, then appearing on some screens. Whether Mrs. Goldwater did in fact show tears at the time was not reported.

Goldwater himself "has been very relaxed" in watching the proceedings, Nellor said.

The first telephone call after the Arizona passed the 655 victory mark came from his former rival for the nomination, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who offered congratulations.

Conference Call

Then the spokesman said Goldwater put in a conference call on the telephone with around 100 regional and floor managers at the Cow Palace convention site and thanked them for their successful efforts.

Mrs. Goldwater and the senator's family rose and burst into applause in their box when the nomination was confirmed.

"I am so thrilled I don't have words to express my feelings," said the senator's wife who had sat through the long evening proceedings under the glare of television cameras and with microphones held up close.

Through the lengthy process of making the vote unanimous, Mrs. Goldwater smiled nervously and seemed to be trying to keep her emotions under control.

son said. There would be some justice in this, Peterson said, because they thought the favorite son plan was organized to stop Goldwater.

Renk, who would not say how he voted in the secret ballot, said he backed Goldwater because he is a team ball player, even though, Renk said, "I am a moderate Republican and Scranton is a moderate Republican."

"Man Mellow" Renk said he was prepared to disagree with Goldwater this fall if necessary but that "a man mellow when he runs for president and is not just an Arizona Senator."

Goldwater had displayed a common touch in his Monday appearance before the delegation, Renk said. He said he was disappointed in Scranton's appearance before the delegates.

The content of the Scranton letter to Goldwater and the fact he chose to fight the platform written by a committee headed by Rep. Melvin Laird were credited by Peterson as causing two or three delegates to switch to Goldwater.

Because of the secret ballot, it was impossible to declare who had held out against Goldwater. John Bossard, La Crosse, was the only delegate to volunteer that he voted for Scranton.

Carried Signs

Many of the delegates emerged from the closed caucus wearing Goldwater buttons which were in a box inside in case they were needed," as Peterson put it.

Later in the day, the strains of "On Wisconsin" were part of the floor demonstration following the Goldwater nomination. Rep. John Byrnes applauded the nomination wearing a star-shaped Goldwater pin. The Wisconsin standard was carried into the aisles. Mrs. Byron Ising, national committee-woman, and Mrs. Dorothy Krohn, party vice chairman, both of Oshkosh, carried Badger signs reporting "Wisconsin Goes Goldwater," sent west for the occasion by some State Young Republicans.

Renk, Republican candidate against Sen. William Proxmire, reported Wednesday a visit with Eisenhower produced a promise of an Eisenhower campaign appearance for him in Wisconsin, probably in September.

"I feel fortunate because he is not going all over. He put me in the same category with Bud Wilkinson (OK Candidate)," Renk said.

President Talks With White House Tourists

WASHINGTON (AP)—The back yard hike and the tourist handshake are back on the White House scene.

President Johnson devoted about 90 minutes Wednesday to the kind of informality he has shied away from recently.

It started with an off-the-record chat and coffee with a score of newsmen present at the White House. Then came a walk twice around the circular drive at the rear of the executive mansion.

Several dozen tourists gathered at a locked iron gate to watch, and Johnson approached and greeted them, trying to shake all the offered hands.

"Give everybody a chance," he urged and as he left, he told them it's "good to see all of you."

Ballistics Lab Hit by 2 Blasts

ROCKET CENTER, W. Va. (AP)—Two explosions shook the Allegheny Ballistics Laboratory early today. There were no injuries.

The manager, Larry Johnson, said the explosions took place "in the pilot plant, while carrying out experimental work."

The laboratory, a 1,600-acre complex just across the Potomac River from Maryland in West Virginia's Eastern Panhandle, is involved primarily in solid propellant research and production. It is operated for the Navy by Hercules Powder Co. of Wilmington, Del.

"The cause of the explosions and the extent of the damage have not yet been determined," Johnson said.

said the decision would be appealed.

"The state law says no one indicted for first-degree murder may be admitted to bail," Corrigan said in Cleveland. Sheppard was indicted on a first-degree murder charge but was found guilty Dec. 21, 1954, of murder in the second degree. He was sentenced to life but is eligible for parole this fall.

Sheppard always has contended a "bushy-haired intruder" killed his wife the night of July 4, 1954.

Attorney to Act

Sheppard's attorney, F. Lee Bailey, arrived here this morning from Boston. According to procedure he could have Sheppard released to the Cuyahoga County sheriff by presenting Weinman's court order. Sheppard, according to the federal court, would be freed when he posts the $10,000 bond in Cleveland. Then a new trial would be set.

Weinman said Sheppard's constitutional rights were violated by these actions:

1. Failure of the trial judge to grant a change of venue for a continuance due to the great amount of publicity.

2. Inability of maintaining impartial jurors.

3. Failure of trial Judge Edward Rhythian, now dead, to disqualify himself although there was uncertainty as to his impartiality.

4. Improper introduction of the detector evidence at the trial.

5. Unauthorised communications to the jury during deliberations.

"If ever there was a trial by newspaper, this is a perfect example," Weinman said. The judge said the Cleveland Press "took upon itself the role of accuser, judge and jury." He called it "the most heinous violation."

Worries Over

—and a forecast that he could win the presidency—came from the Independent London Evening Standard's Jean Campbell, who also disagreed with most of her British colleagues.

"For the first time in 34 years the Republican party has fallen into the hands of the conservatives, the natural and healthy opposition for the liberal Democrats," she wrote from the Cow Palace.

"You have only to sit in this crazy Cow Palace to realize that Barry Goldwater could beat the Democrats. Why? Because in his own atrium of recollections his own tart and true words he offers a choice. Not an echo."

Cassandra, columnist of Britain's five-million-circulation pro-Labor Daily Mirror wrote from the Cow Palace:

"The corpse of much that is decent and wise and tolerant in American society is in the coffin, although the lid has not yet been finally screwed down."

"Goldwater has won because he appeals to the frustrations of millions of Americans who are dissatisfied with the apparent ingratitude of foreign nations, who are sick and afraid of communism and who, at home, dislike the political and economic emergence of the Negroes."

"Slater Emotions"

The Conservative Daily Sketch took a similar line:

"He has a powerful appeal to two of the most sinister—but sincere—emotions of some American voters."

"Frustration—for 19 years America has been the most powerful country in the world. Yet she cannot use her vast thermo-nuclear might to mop the Viet Cong rebels around Saigon."

Threat to World

"Color prejudice—to white Americans who fear racial equality is a man who would stand up to the Negroes."

In Paris, the left-leaning Combat described Goldwater as "an irresponsible prospect for president who risks blowing up the world, blowing up Europe, blowing up his own country."

Reaction in conservative, strongly anti-Communist Spain was mixed.

Several Spanish government officials expressed delight at the nomination.

"Now," said one, "we will see a real live, hard-hitting campaign in the states."

In Hong Kong, the Chinese Communist paper Commercial Daily described Goldwater as "an extremist backed by the John Birch Society, the Ku Klux Klan and Fascists."

In Tokyo, the newspaper Asahi declared: "We hope the Democrats will beat Mr. Goldwater in the forthcoming presidential election."

Mr. Goldwater's declared policies are similar to those of irresponsible Communists advocating revolution and if carried out will invite the danger of war. Our support for the Democratic party does not mean we are always sided with one of the two U.S. major political parties."

The newspaper Yomiuri observed:

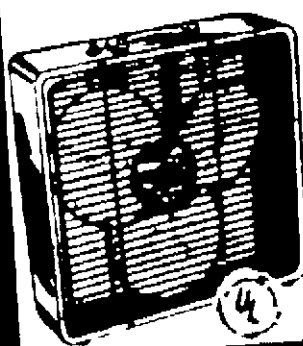

"It cannot be denied that Goldwater's nomination shows that deep-rooted isolationism exists within the United States, especially among workers and farmers who do not enjoy the current prosperity."

"However, the United States today is not permitted to follow intransigent nationalism in the current international situation and we are concerned over the outcome of the forthcoming presidential election."

Whitey Ford Stops Orioles on 3 Hits

Twins' Grant Blanks Senators Despite Giving Up 13 Safeties

BY MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Whitey Ford of the New York Yankees has pitched his seventh shutout of the season. But he allowed only three hits.

That's the easy way.

For a real spectacular achievement, there's Jim Grant of the Minnesota Twins, who pitched his first shutout of the season.

He allowed 13 hits.

Ford hurled the Yankees into the American League lead Wednesday in a head-to-head battle with Baltimore, blanking the Orioles 3-0 while Joe Pepitone took care of the runs with a two-run single in the second inning.

Pitching one of his strongest games of the year, Ford prevented the Orioles from getting a man beyond first base as he brought his record to 12-2, lowered his earned run average to 1.98 and extended the Yankees winning streak to six games.

Hours later, Grant took the mound for the Twins and started laboring. He gave up eight hits in the first four innings—three in the fourth—but managed to keep the Washington Senators from scoring as he wound up with a 6-0 victory.

Ford's three-hitter was the eighth in the AL this season and the 19th in the majors, but Grant stepped up to a plateau that hasn't been reached since May 26, 1959, when Lew Burdette of Milwaukee allowed Pittsburgh 13 hits before winning 1-0 in 13 innings.

The loser that time was Harvey Haddix, who pitched 12 innings of perfect ball against the Braves.

Available record books list one 14-hit shutout in each league—by the Chicago Cubs in 1913 and by the Senators in 1928.

Other Shutout

One other shutout was turned in Wednesday. Dean Chance of Los Angeles getting his second straight in the nightcap as the Angels swept Detroit 5-4 and 1-0. Elsewhere, Dick Stuart hit two three-run homers as Boston crushed the Chicago White Sox 11-2 and Kansas City took two from Cleveland 5-3 and 3-2.

Carlson Authors Two Upsets in Publinx Test

Minnesotan Ousts Medalist, Top Hawaiian

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—In two great rallies, 19-year-old Jim Carlson of Hopkins, Minn., knocked off the medalist and Hawaii's No. 1 player Wednesday to advance to the third round in the National Public Links Golf Tournament.

The bespectacled University of Minnesota sophomore, who won the Minnesota state junior amateur title last year, eliminated Steve Oppermann of San Francisco in a 19-hole first-round thriller.

Then he defeated Gregory Dikilato of Kailua Oahu, Hawaii 1 up in the afternoon.

Oppermann, the current Western amateur and California state champion, and public links runner-up last year, won medalist honors with 70-65-135 over the 6,593-yard par 35-35-70 Francis Gross course.

Carlson, an economics major, was two down after the first nine against Oppermann and one down after winning the 15th with a seven-foot birdie putt. He gained a one up lead on the 17th when Oppermann was trapped and bogied.

Pulled Even

But the 22-year-old San Franciscan pulled even at 18 with a par four when Carlson hit the sand and three-putted from 45 feet for a double-bogey six.

On the 356-yard 19th, Oppermann's pitch from the rough was short and his chip was 15 feet from the cup. Carlson was on in two, after coming out of the rough, and cinched his par while his opponent missed his putt and took a five, ending the match.

Carlson was one up on Dikilato with a first nine 36, but traps cost him the next two holes. The Islander went two up with a five-foot birdie putt on 12. Carlson won 14 with a birdie but Dikilato again went two up with a standard four at 15 while Carlson three-putted.

Rallied to Win

Carlson then rallied to win the last three holes with a 13-foot birdie putt on 16, a regulation three on 17 and an 18-foot birdie tap on 18, closing with 35 for a 70. Dikilato had 72.

"My driver was my big weapon," said the broad-shouldered blond Carlson. "I had been pushing my shots. But last night pro Les Bolstad changed my grip slightly and my movement on the downswing. I got back in the groove just in time."

The double round Wednesday trimmed the field to 16 sur-

Wisconsin Gas '9' Stays Unbeaten in Kaukauna Softball

KAUKAUNA — Wisconsin Gas ran its record to 6-0 in the National division of the North Junior Softball League last week with a 14-4 win over KAC and a 10-2 decision over Farmers and Merchants.

Bernie Van Zeeland hurled both wins to run his record to 6-0. F and M beat Ploetz 15-4 and KAC stopped Ploetz 18-9. Mark Schneider is the leading hitter with a .750 mark followed by Dave LaBordie with .667. Terry Rubin and LaBordie each hit three homers during the week.

In American division Junior Softball play, Bank of Kaukauna (5-1) won 10-13 over Beyer Building and 7-3 over Bowling Bar to hold first. Beyer Building topped Super Valu 7-2, and Super Valu downed Bowling Bar, 9-4.

Karl Grebe is leading hurler with a 5-1 mark. Tom Vock is leading batter, with Barry O'Connor second.

Bratko wski complimented Dennis Claridge for his work in the All-America game in Buffalo last June. "You looked good," said Zeke and Dennis just shook his head.

Incidentally, Claridge, asked about his preference—quarterback or halfback, said he preferred halfback. Why? "I don't know. I always have," he laughed.

Claridge is a good-sized lad at 6-3 and 225. He'll get a test at both QB and HB. The coaches have been pleasantly surprised at Claridge's passing ability.

The veterans on hand for the physicals were Tom Moore, Paul Horning, Forrest Gregg, Bob Skoronski, Starr and Bratko wski.

Records Fall In Time Trials At KK Arena

DARBOY — Stock car racing to a 6-1 Legion victory over the KK Sports Arena when the modified stocks raced at the track Tuesday evening.

Speeds were fast as all the top 12 qualifiers in the time trials broke previous track records. Fastest qualifier was Larry Shimmer, Plymouth, with a quarter-mile time of 15.08 seconds, or 57.38 miles per hour.

In the 20th lap of the feature race, a few spectators had to scramble out of the way when to their surprise Bob Kempen, Plymouth, came up the embankment in front of the bleachers, through the protective screen, and came to rest in the bleachers. It is believed the tie rods which control the steering mechanism broke. No one was injured.

Winner of the feature was Ken Markwardt, Sheboygan, who also won the first heat and set a new track record of 52.04 miles per hour. Other heat winners were Shimmer, first heat; Ed Stahler, West Bend, third heat; and Kermit Schultz, Plymouth, fourth heat. Don Diener, Sheboygan, won the semi-feature event.

Seymour Legion Cops, 6-1, Over Wrightstown '9'

SEYMOUR — Gene Luepke's fine relief pitching led Seymour to a 6-1 Legion victory over Wrightstown here Wednesday night.

Luepke relieved Don Kettner who worked the first three innings. Kettner had three strikeouts and walked three while Luepke had seven strikeouts and walked one.

Terry Ferron was the loser for Wrightstown. He recorded 11 strikeouts and walked four.

Ron Rosemow led Seymour's 12-hit attack with four-for-five including three singles and a double.

Goldwater Rated as Almost Unique In His Campaign for Presidency

BY WALTER R. MEARS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—While the campaign crowd cheered him, Arizona's Sen. Barry Goldwater stood smiling and waiting—and a trifle impatient.

For nearly 10 minutes the ovation thundered through New York's Madison Square Garden, and the chant "We want Barry" became a roar.

"You'll get him if you'll just be quiet," the senator shouted.

Goldwater's reaction to that burst of cheers may be unique in presidential campaigning, but so in many ways, is Goldwater.

The biggest triumph of his primary campaign—in California—wrought no change in the senator's nonchalant outlook. He welcomed it with a word of thanks to his supporters—then took the back door out of his hotel to avoid the crowd of jubilant fans.

Bucks History

He slept his way across the country in a jet airliner while the California returns rolled in, snapped at reporters waiting at the airport in Washington—and vanished from public view for a rest.

"He's not a man who likes to exploit his triumphs," said campaign director Denis Kitchel. "He acts pretty much in victory, as he does in defeat."

By his own account, Goldwater is bucking the trend of history, seeking the White House as a senator from a small Western state.

He goes where he wants when he wants, often ignoring the protests of his local campaign following.

He's said some things that would have other politicians washing their own mouths with soap.

Has Own Ideas

He is outspoken and blunt, but introspective and affable; he is at once doctrinaire and doubting.

Goldwater is a man with his own ideas, not only about presidential campaigning, but almost everything else.

"I'm not one of those baby-kissing, hand-shaking, blintz-eating candidates," he said once. "I don't like to insult the American intelligence by thinking that slapping people on the back is going to get you votes."

Once during the ill-starred New Hampshire primary campaign, Goldwater's state managers decided he should shake hands in some restaurants.

Goldwater went, but he didn't like the idea a bit.

No Work Sundays

"If someone came up to me and stuck out his hand while I was eating a hamburger, I'd put the hamburger in it," he said.

An Episcopalian, Goldwater doesn't campaign on Sundays. He has walked briskly through more than one Sunday-morning crowd of airport greeters.

Goldwater has never mastered the quick and easy handshake—the hello-goodbye style of a Nelson A. Rockefeller. He is at his best when there's time to stop and talk—about his ham radio rigs or his native Phoenix or his books, "The Conscience of a Conservative" and "Why Not Victory?"

He spent 20 minutes on a windy New Hampshire street corner, talking about conservatism with a young woman while aides tried in vain to get him started on a street tour. When the woman finally announced she lived in Rhode Island and couldn't vote in New Hampshire's primary anyhow, at didn't seem to bother Goldwater.

Watches Western

In California, Goldwater took a campaign afternoon off in Oakland for what his schedule labeled "staff conferences." An aide confided he spent much of it watching a Western on television—counting the shots the sheriff fired and complaining every time a six-shooter unloaded more than its rightful share of bullets.

While Goldwater denies it, the suspicion persists that he was swept by the tide of events and the fervor of his conservative following into a presidential bid he didn't really relish.

"I've never done anything to get the nomination, and yet all of a sudden everyone wants to thrust it on me," he said more than a year ago.

But last Jan. 3—three days after his 55th birthday—Goldwater announced he was going after it.

"I wouldn't have got into this if I didn't really want it," the senator insists.

Not Spellbinder

"However, he has no overwhelming desire to be president," says a traveling aide. "If he thought there was another conservative who could do the job he'd be glad to hire him to lead him down a minimum price tag of $1,000 a copy. Contributions for autographed copies of that limited edition book helped build his campaign kitty.

Goldwater has amateur radio stations in Phoenix and in Washington. To follow him, he's just plain Barry. And if he goes to the White House, the senator says, he'll take the radio transmitter with him. "And the bundle will still be Barry."

But Goldwater fans turn out for message, not style. And the senator gives them that—two-fisted attacks on President Johnson, demands for an end to big government, and a promise that he will lead the nation to a stronger stance in the world and a balanced budget at home.

Occasionally, Goldwater rises to emotional eloquence.

"I want to help my country," he told one crowd. "I want to work for it, I want to pay my rent for a Polish grandchild who came to this country through England. I just want to help."

Major General

Goldwater is a major general in the Air Force Reserve, and one of two senators qualified to fly military jets.

Goldwater was born in Phoenix, the son of a department store owner, Baron Goldwater and a former Nebraska nurse named Josephine Williams Goldwater.

His mother had gone to Arizona with supposedly incurable tuberculosis. Doctors gave her six months to live. She proved them wrong.

Goldwater's father was Jew-

He's Done All Right

Goldwater—who once was quoted as saying he wasn't sure he had "the brains to be the president"—had a quick and sharp answer when that question came up in Minneapolis.

"I've done all right in my life," he said. "I don't have a Phi Beta Kappa key, but I hire them."

A friendly, free-wheeling Westerner, Goldwater is at home swigging beer from a paper cup at an Arizona rodeo, or chatting by radio with a Mexican friend as he pilots his twin-engine airplane near the border.

"How I hate to leave this place," he said once, scanning the rugged mountains and desert vista around his hilltop home in Phoenix.

Changes Vocabulary

"Notice, I've reformed my vocabulary," he told a California crowd. "Those folks back east didn't like it."

Goldwater traces his ancestry to pioneer stock, and a grandfather who crossed the desert from California to Arizona to open the family store. One of his favorite campaign lines: "How he did it without federal aid, I'll never know."

For all the coffee hours he has hit as a candidate, Goldwater says he has never tasted the stuff. He says that is because of some advice from his mother, now near 90 and living in Phoenix.

"My mother told me I'd never grow tall if I smoked or drank coffee. Thank the Lord she didn't mention whisky."

6 Feet Tall

In that department, bourbon is Goldwater's drink. He often has a few to unwind after a day's campaigning.

With no coffee and no cigarettes, Goldwater stands 6 feet tall and weighs about 185 pounds. He has an outdoorsman's tan—and he doesn't like to sit still very long.

He has spent more than 8,000 hours aloft as a military pilot and covered well over a million miles as a Republican party fund-raiser.

Goldwater served six years as chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee. That thrust him into national prominence as a relatively junior senator.

Two of his hobbies—flying and photography—have been wrapped into his presidential bid.

On short hops, Goldwater often took the controls of his own plane or a chartered DC3 and flew himself to campaign appearances. It not only gets him there—the hours aloft relax him.

Worked in Store

Goldwater spent a year at the University of Arizona, but quit shortly after his father died and went to work at the store. He became general manager in 1928, later president and then chairman. The family sold the department store business in 1963.

Sons Help Father

Sons Barry Jr. and Michael have done more traveling than their father at times, carrying the word to states the senator has not reached, speaking at colleges and thinking campaign do's.

Daughters Jo Anne—who is Mrs. Thomas Ross of Torrance, Calif., and Peggy—newly wed to Richard Holt of Los Angeles—have chipped in, too, at teas and ladies' gatherings.

And Goldwater speaks often of his Uncle Morris, a founder of Arizona's Democratic party and his political mentor.

Campaign Manager

A year later, he managed the campaign that made Republican Howard Pyle governor of Arizona. In 1952, he took on Democratic Sen. Ernest W. McFarland, then rated Arizona's top vote-getter, and beat him by a scant 7,000 votes.

Goldwater won a rematch in 1958.

His wife, Peggy, has been at his side on many of his

NEW YORK (AP)—A new city law makes it illegal to carry a rifle or shotgun in public unless it is unloaded and enclosed in a carrying case.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner signed the bill Wednesday. The police department had urged it as a crime deterrent.

Gun club representatives called the law unconstitutional. One club official said it would open the door to "harassment of sportsmen."

Right, apparently. We often ourselves on being able to hear, of those who later become "play it cool." In dealing with leaders in government and in the police or with those whom duty, that even as small child they hoped to swindle, an under-dren they were organizing their ruffled manner was the very essence of their ideal. They also had an egoistic self-confidence that they were able to handle any situation and were the most highly prized qualities.

Auburndale took the lead in the second inning, as it scored four runs on only one hit. Four walks, two wild pitches, and a double by Jack Uttermark produced the runs.

Bob Hubert pitched a complete game victory. He scattered eight hits, did not walk anybody, and had nine strikeouts in the seven inning game.

Kaukauna Board Will Seek Klein Property

Educators Want City to Purchase Land on Southeast Side for Future School Building

KAUKAUNA — The board of acres at $2,500 per acre and take option on additional acreage.

The site has been recommended by the state educational board and planning commission as centrally located. Permission from the council is needed. Under a city school system, the city is required to purchase school property. The board would deed the property to the city, but is seeking permission to carry out negotiations of the sale.

Classroom Overheating

A report from a gas company engineer showed the school board could anticipate spending from $10,000 to $15,000 to solve a solar heat problem in six classrooms at the high school. Each spring and fall, when weather is warm, the temperature in these rooms soars and it has been blamed mostly on solar radiation from adjoining buildings.

Investigation into a possible solution has been asked from heating and refrigeration experts, all with the same results. High cost. Board members authorized the superintendent, Julian Bichler, to work with the building committee and have the windows in one classroom bricked shut to determine whether some relief could be noted.

Cost to City

Dominic Bordini, director of Kaukauna Vocational School, explained an area post high school, technical training school being considered. He indicated it would cost about $87,000 for Kaukauna to assist in constructing the school and an additional $16,000 to $20,000 to operate the school each year thereafter.

He asked the board's feelings of such a technical school. Board members agreed the plan had merit and it was likely to become a reality in the future, but at the present were hesitant to back the plan as school costs locally were a major problem.

Superintendent Bichler was authorized to seek bids on an older home to be removed from school property behind the high school and on two softball backstops, bids to be in by Aug. 4. Bidders on the home will be required to move the house from the lot by Sept. 1 and level the lot on which it stands.

The resignation of Bruce Warner as high school English teacher was accepted and Richard Dahl, graduate of Eau Claire State College, was named to replace him.

Elementary History Text Ancient History When It Returns

STEVENS POINT — Thirty-nine years ago a coed checked out a book from the Campus School Library at Wisconsin State University here. She returned the book this week asking how much she owed in fines.

The coed, formerly Georgiana Hoffman and now Mrs. Irving Carey of Antioch, Ill., wrote to WSU President James H. Albertson explaining that by mistake she took the elementary history book home years ago when she left college.

"I just never got around to returning it," she wrote, and then it was put on a shelf in my mother's home. I came across it when the house was sold."

In the book were two mathematics flash cards which she also returned. President Albertson, in answering the letter, told her to forget about the fine.

19 Families Attend Hortonville Reunion

HORTONVILLE—The Lueck-Lucht reunion Sunday at Commercial Club Park was attended by 19 family units.

Gilbert Lueck, Antigo, who had been vice president during the current year will assume duties of the president for next year. Walter Lueck is the new vice president and Mrs. M. Colar Jr. secretary-treasurer.

The officers will be in charge of planning the next reunion.

Avoid Overdoing

Getting away from it all? You'll come back in better shape if you don't take on excessive strenuous vacation sports or excessive sight-seeing, the Eau Claire State College, says.

18 Credits Now Needed for Kimberly High Graduation

KIMBERLY—The board of education Monday night voted to include George Casey, junior raise requirements for Kimberly high school English. William Ly High School graduation from Hogan, junior high science 16 to 18 credits effective with Carlton Brown, junior high in the 1964-65 school year.

Action was taken after Ray art and Daniel Molzahn, both Hamann superintendent of senior high English schools pointed out the school. Still to be hired for 1964-65 went into a 7 hour day several year are a senior high librarians and it now appears an and a combination fifth and some seniors who have carried sixth grade teacher five credits for the past three years need only one more credit to graduate.

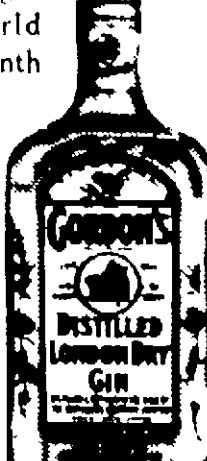

Teachers Hired

Increasing the credits needed school and since hours for kindergarten do not correspond with high school classes, no difficulty is expected.

Which came first: the golf ball or Gordon's Gin?

Golf dates back to the 15th Century when a ball stuffed with feathers was used. In 1848 the guttie—a hard, moulded ball that was the direct forerunner of our modern golf ball—was introduced in Britain. In London, 79 years before this innovation, Alexander Gordon perfected his formula for a special gin.

Today golfers the world over relax at the Nineteenth Hole and enjoy the delicate flavour and distinctive dryness of Gordon's Gin. Some claim that Gordon's offers considerable consolation as they total their score. No wonder it's the biggest seller in England, America, the world!

Hoffa's Fraud Trial Nearing Final Phase

Teamster President Denies Conspiring To Divert Funds

CHICAGO (AP)—The defense is expected to rest its case today in the marathon 12-week fraud and conspiracy trial of James R. Hoffa, after the Teamsters president completes his testimony.

The chunky union leader took the witness stand Wednesday and denied that he fraudulently arranged more than $20 million in real estate loans from the union's pension fund. He said he never conspired with his six codefendants to divert $1 million of the fund to his and his associates' pockets.

Describes Fund

The 51-year-old labor leader gave the packed U.S. District courtroom description of the fund from its inception in 1955. Before Hoffa's testimony, another defendant, Zachary A. Strate Jr., testified that the government coerced a witness to give false testimony in the trial.

Strate, 44, of San Juan, P.R., a former New Orleans real estate promoter, said his former partner, Warren Rose, testified against him "to get off the hook with the Internal Revenue Service."

Earlier Testimony
Rose, of New Orleans, testified previously as a government witness that Strate paid back loans of $1,650,000 to another defendant, Benjamin Dranow, for loans received from the pension fund.

Strate said, "Rose came to me in June 1961 (when the government was investigating the pension fund) and said the government had found out he had put $175,000 in a safe deposit box."

Rose said he was in trouble for possible income tax violations and was going to cooperate with the government in its investigation of Hoffa and the pension fund to get off the hook," Strate said.

The government charges that Hoffa devised the scheme to defraud the pension fund in order to extricate himself from a falling Florida homes development in which he was financially involved.

Goldwater to Fight 'Clean, Conservative Campaign'

Miller to Be Given 2nd Place

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona Wednesday night pledged a vigorous but clean campaign against President Johnson in November.

Goldwater said he would campaign "on the issues solely" and that he would not engage in "a personal attack."

He thanked his campaign workers and said he "can't find words to express the feeling that is in my heart. No greater honor can come to any Republican."

Miller Will be Running Mate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—New York Rep. William E. Miller is Sen. Barry Goldwater's choice for vice president on the 1964 Republican ticket, it was announced today.

Goldwater's press aide Ed Nellor said the selection of Miller would be presented at the Republican state chairmen's meeting today by California GOP Leader William F. Knowland.

The choice of Miller, who has been chairman of the Republican National Committee, is expected to be ratified speedily by the Republican National Convention. The convention delegates customarily follow exactly the wishes of the presidential nominee.

Goldwater said he is, having a meeting of all 30 state chairmen this morning, and will meet Thursday to confer on steps to unify the party.

Message to Scranton
New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, former rival for the GOP presidential nomination, was the first visitor to pay a call on the Arizona senator after his victory.

Gov. Scranton was the next caller. Goldwater also sent a telegram to Scranton immediately after the convention decision, expressing appreciation for Scranton's unity plea to the delegates and urging that they work together for victory over the Democrats in the fall elections.

When he was watching the balloting from his hotel suite he switched on a second set just as

Laotian Reds Hit At Stronghold

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Pro-Communist forces today launched an attack against the last neutralist stronghold position on the northwestern fringe of the Communist-held Plain of Jars, a Defense Ministry spokesman said.

The communists reported the attack was aimed at the Plain of Jars, a Defense Ministry spokesman said. The May figure of 1312 also represented an upward revision based on additional information. It had been reported earlier as 1303.

Tables Turned on Viet Cong

Reds Reported Routed In Attempt at Ambush

BY MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP)—The Vietnamese government said today its forces turned an attempted Viet Cong ambush in the Mekong River delta Tuesday into a bloody rout of the Communists.

More than 100 Viet Cong attackers were killed, a government announcement said. Vietnamese losses were listed at 17 dead and 30 wounded. American authorities said they could not immediately confirm the figures.

Saigon's Defense Ministry said the battle was fought in a flat ricefield of Vinh Binh Province 70 miles southwest of Saigon. The sector has been relatively quiet in recent weeks.

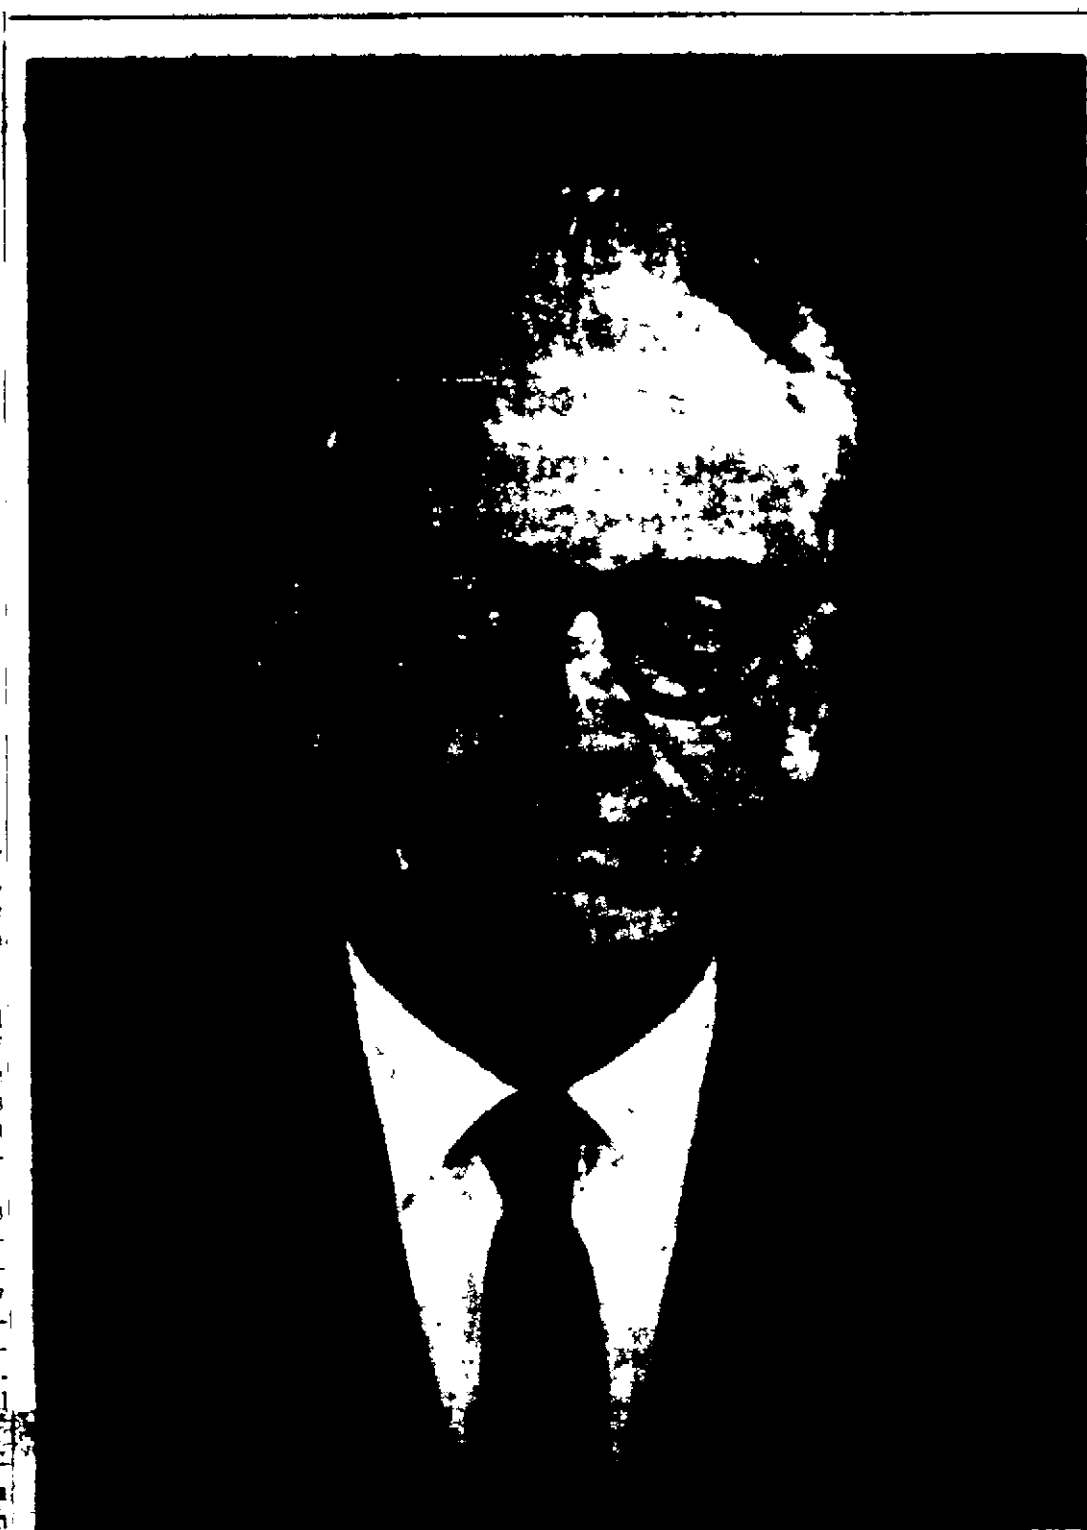

The report said an outpost of seven miles from the town of Cau Nguang came under heavy Viet Cong attack and the main fight began when a column of light government relief soldiers moved in. In another ambush Tuesday reported earlier, the Viet Cong sniped a military truck convoy near Tam Ky in northeastern South Viet Nam. Vietnamese forces lost 17 dead and 21 wounded in that engagement.

The government said its planes and infantry killed 20 Viet Cong guerrillas Wednesday in a strike 240 miles northeast of Saigon along the South China Sea coast near Tuy Hoa.

In Pleiku Province 240 miles northeast of Saigon Wednesday, Viet Cong attacks on three separate government truck convoys were reported driven off with relatively light government losses.

A major new government offensive was launched today in the Mekong River delta. Initial contact with the Viet Cong was reported and philosophy.

Sen. Barry Goldwater
Republican Presidential Nominee

Politicians See Groundswell In Wisconsin for Goldwater

Strong Support Other Than Party Regulars Noted for Arizonan

BY JAMES BARTELT

Post-Crescent News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — The Wisconsin delegation to the National Republican Convention provided all its 30 votes for the presidential nomination of Sen. Barry Goldwater Wednesday night. Pro-Goldwater supporters outside the normal state GOP organization were pointed to as a big reason.

(The Badger state's 30 votes were too far down the line alphabetically to figure prominently in handling Goldwater, the party's presidential nomination.)

"We were nine states too late but what are you going to do when you live in one that starts with a W," asked State Chairman Taibot Peterson of Appleton.

Agreement on this point came from Warren Knowles, candidate for governor. Wilbur Reink, senatorial candidate, and Peterson, all of whom were voting delegates after the Wisconsin decision was announced. A closed caucus voted 86-4 for Goldwater over Gov. William Scranton and all 30 votes went into the Goldwater roll call Wednesday night under a unanimous agreement to award them to the candidate who got the most votes in secret balloting.

Strong Undercurrent
Knowles, who said he voted for Goldwater, said he has detected a groundswell of something I have not seen in my 20 years of political life for the GOP nominee in Wisconsin.

There is a strong undercurrent of conservatism in our state, almost revolutionary in its present trend. I heard from names I do not recognize as directly affiliated with the Republican organization as such," Knowles said.

Knowles said many of the letters came from the Green Bay area. While he expects Gov. John Reynolds to make Goldwater an issue in the fall election, Knowles said he was not concerned because he has never been a coat-tail rider and will run on his own programs and philosophy.

Peterson agreed that Goldwater's dedicated following was his greatest contribution to the Republican effort this fall in Wisconsin.

"I think it's obvious that Sen. Goldwater has developed an organization at the grass roots level which won the primary for him in California, and it is the same devoted dedicated grass roots effort that will carry him to victory in Wisconsin and the rest of the nation," he said.

Peterson said the Republican organization would throw the challenge back to Goldwater advocates in a form letter to about 800 persons who wrote him.

The letter will say, "OK, you wanted Goldwater and you got him, now, get to work," Peterson said.

Cohn Acquitted Of Perjury by Federal Jury

NEW YORK (AP)—A U.S. District Court jury today acquitted attorney Roy M. Cohn on charges of perjury and obstruction of justice.

The case was a retrial of the one-time aide to the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy. R. Wis. A mistrial had been declared on the same charges April 19.

The jury of 11 men and a woman also acquitted Murray E. Gottesman, a codefendant who was charged with perjury.

The jurors, who received the case Wednesday, had deliberated nine hours.

Federal Judge Orders Release of Sam Sheppard From Ohio Prison

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, the "Doctor Sam" of one of the nation's most publicized murder cases, was expected to leave Ohio Penitentiary today on strength of a federal court order.

He had won the release order after nearly 10 years of futile temporary freedom before a new trial.

U.S. Dist. Judge Carl A. Weinman in Dayton ruled Wednesday that the 40-year-old Ray Village suburbanite was denied his constitutional rights in his 1954 trial in Cleveland. The trial resulted in his conviction in the bludgeoning slaying of Marilyn Sheppard.

Judge Weinman said Sheppard's custody is void and if Cuyahoga County or the state takes no action within 60 days the release becomes final.

Weinman's 88-page decision denounced the coverage given the case by three Cleveland newspapers and also mentioned three nationally known radio commentators and columnists.

The judge acting on a request for a writ of habeas corpus ordered Sheppard's release under $10,000 bond.

Arizona Senator Wins Nomination 23 Minutes After Roll Call Starts

BY JACK BELL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Republicans have roared approval of Sen. Barry Goldwater as their presidential nominee and he vows to carry the conservative cause to the American voters in November.

The 55-year-old grandson of a Jewish peddler who emigrated to California from London ground moderate Republicans under his steamroller as he pushed to a first-ballot victory Wednesday night.

Decision in 23 Minutes

Twenty-three minutes after the call of the states began Goldwater became the nominee ballots to put him over the 665 where he was, Scranton, his face solemn for the moment, told the delegates that the time

Palace, showed the overwhelming manner in which the Arizona senator had made his views popular with the 1,388 delegates.

The count showed, Goldwater 883 and Scranton 214.

At this point a chipper and smiling Scranton appeared dramatically to walk the long length of the platform to the rostrum where, framed in the lights and in the eye of the television cameras, he moved to make Goldwater's nomination unanimous. The hall burst at the seams with the thunder of approval.

Appeals for Unity
Recalling that four years previously Goldwater had stood where he was, Scranton, his face solemn for the moment, told the delegates that the time

Press Abroad Worries Over Nomination

Sees Reaction in U. S. And Expresses Fears For World's Peace

LONDON (AP)—The nomination of Sen. Barry Goldwater aroused editorial apprehensions in Britain and most of Europe today.

Government officials refrained from public comment, but newspapers in general described the choice of the Arizona senator as a victory for the forces of reaction and a threat to world peace.

Bitterest of all, predictably, was the Communist press. Pravda, the organ of the Soviet Communist party, said Goldwater was running on the "most reactionary, bellicose and adventurist pre-election platform in American history."

Adverse Criticism
The Moscow paper Sovetskaya Rossiya declared that Goldwater was backed by a coalition "consisting of the most aggressive capitalist groups, racist trade union opponents, crusaders of anti-communism and Ku Klux Klanners."

There were hard words for the GOP standard-bearer from anti-Communist journals of Western Europe as well. Stockholm's Liberal Expressen, the biggest daily in Scandinavia, described the nomination as "a catastrophe for the Republicans, a threat against the United States a danger to the world."

Copenhagen's Liberal Ekstra-Bladet asserted "Blackest Reaction" The blackest reaction won the battle in the Cow Palace. The progressive forces that have ruled in the Republican party since 1940 were trampled down under hooves this morning.

Said Oslo's Liberal Dagbladet: Those who once made up the Eisenhower wing within the Republican party have suffered a catastrophic defeat which also will turn out to be a catastrophe for the party itself. With Goldwater as its political general it will meet its Waterloo in November.

Parties certainly are delightful the year around, but somehow it's more fun to talk about them and plan them during the warm days of summer. Foods for parties seem more colorful in summertime as the advancing seasons bring a variety of fresh fruits and vegetables to the table. Maybe it's because the summer itself seems "party pretty" with its weather an ally.

But whatever the choice, the menu should fit the occasion... and so should the party setting, whether it's the featured food or just the trimmings. For most hostesses, the table and foods should be as attractive as possible... the choice of dishes extra special so that every guest feels honored.

One friend of mine who's an excellent cook and party planner supreme uses her summer days for a culinary project that really pays off in her busy hostess department come fall. She collects party menus, decorating ideas and recipes in much the same manner other women turn to "pick-up" work of knitting, crocheting or stitching. At her lake cottage home, the recipe file is always at hand. She never leaves the house without notebook and pencil "just in case" she runs into a good recipe or idea.

Shopping trips into town for groceries... visits to the library... stops at a roadside vegetable and fruit stand are all grist to this hobbyist's culinary quest. It's amazing the number of recipes she picks up by way of reading, clipping, talking and swapping. After a session of sorting, discarding and then testing, the tried-and-true recipes get filed along with any pertinent notes on how to coordinate a party using said treasure.

A good party corollary is this: If the hostess has a good time at her own party, the event is a whopping success. This involves planning for as little work as possible at party-time and matching the food to the occasion.

Party for Teens

Teen-agers enjoy an open house type of party. Plan it for porch, backyard, poolside or beach. Serve buffet kabobs along with a chafing dish of meatballs and Tangy Franks. The Buffet Kabobs are bite-sized chunks of fruits and vegetables, arranged on a large platter. The choice might include dill pickle sections, mandarin orange sections, green pepper strips, halved cherry tomatoes and pineapple chunks. Provide skewers and let guests make their own selection and their own kabobs. Serve with a simple cake or Chocolate Crumb Bars for a delicious ending.

When "the girls" get together, make it a buffet or card table luncheon on the "Over the Rainbow" theme. The food can be a cool and colorful Rainbow Fruit Salad served with warm crunchy bran muffins. This kind of refreshment lends itself to easy preparation and fine feminine food for either a daytime or evening get-together.

Anniversary Party
Suggested for an anniversary party is Chicken and Grapes, a dish elegant enough to serve at the fanciest dinner, yet a treat for such a special occasion. Serve with a simple salad and crisp cheese crackers.

The bridal luncheon is another one of these special events always in season. This kind of party is one of the nicest ways for a bride to say "thank you" to individual ramekins. Sprinkle top with cheese cracker crumbs. Bake in 350-degree oven 30 to 35 minutes. Recipe makes 6 to 8 servings.

ORANGE BLOSSOM PIE
1 1/2 cups ginger snap crumbs
1/4 cup softened butter
1/4 cup sugar

CRAB CASSEROLE
1/4 cup chopped green pepper

At the far left the makings for buffet kabobs team with party meatballs and tangy franks for a teen party. Elegant Chicken and Grapes, lower left is the dish suggested for an anniversary party worth remembering.

Above a party for "the girls" features a Rainbow Salad of fresh fruits and hot bran muffins. At the right, individual crab casseroles and Orange Blossom Pie are choices for a bridal luncheon.

Paste Up Tattered, Torn Ears; Listeners Are Needed, Says Ann

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a psychology major who seems perfectly competent when it comes to handling other people's problems but I can't seem to handle my own.

My friends call me the poor girl's Ann Landers. Everyone pours out his troubles to me because I am so "patient," so understanding, so easy to talk to.

At parties I'm always stuck with the bums and the drunks who have no normal facilities. They corner me and unravel stories of unrequited love, miserable relatives and the secret fears and doubts they just "couldn't discuss with anyone else."

Frankly, I'm sick of it. My ears are tattered and torn. What can I do? — Cornered Cora

Wrap Pipes To Control Sweating

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: The water pipes in the cellar sweat. How can this be corrected before putting up the ceiling tile?

A: Wrap the pipes with insulation jackets of asbestos, or fiber glass tape. Available at large hardware stores and plumbing supplies dealers.

Q: A year ago we bought an older cream-colored brick house. The brick is quite dirty and during the nice weather we have now, we would like to clean it up. Painting would be too expensive. Is there anything we could use to clean the bricks? Something that wouldn't be harmful and make the bricks crumble. We don't mind a little hard work as long as we can get the job done and as cheaply as possible.

A: To clean the brick, wet them down with water. Then scrub either with a detergent powder solution (using about a quarter cupful in each pail of water), or with a mechanic's hand soap containing fine sand and plenty of hot water. To prevent formation of permanent dirt streaks, scrub from the bottom upward, keeping the wall under the area being scrubbed thoroughly wetted down. Rinse thoroughly with clear water afterwards.

Q: The varnish on my floors between rugs, in the doorways, is worn. How may I revarnish these areas without it looking different from the rest of the floor?

A: Take up any dirt in the worn areas with a damp cloth. If necessary, go over the surface with fine sandpaper. Then apply a new coat of varnish, brushing out well at the edges to make the "patch" inconspicuous.

Q: What might I use to remove stains from a porcelain bathtub? These were caused by a liquid cleaning agent used to clean wall tile. I have tried several types of cleaning agents, including pumice stone and oil.

A: I suspect that the cleaning agent destroyed the finish on the porcelain tub, giving it the stained result. Know of no way to restore this, other than refinishing the entire tub. Epoxy tub and tile finishing preparations are available now at some large housewares and hardware stores.

My two sisters and I have offered mother a place in one of our homes but she is very stubborn. She promised never to leave her children and nothing can change her mind.

Frankly, Ann, we think these rest homes are all right for people who have no other place to go, but when a mother has children right in town, it looks to outsiders as if they don't want to take her in.

Will you please tell her she is wrong and we are right? — Loving Daughters

Dear Daughters: I suspect you girls are primarily concerned with what people will say rather than how your mother feels.

She sounds like a wonderful woman and a smart cookie. I'm with her.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you please tell us what to do about a 12-year-old boy who still sucks his thumb?

Hugh is a good student and a fine athlete. We have never had any problems with him. He gets along fine with neighbors, friends and relatives. He started to suck his thumb when he was an infant and has never stopped.

When Hugh was four years old I spoke to our doctor about his thumb-sucking and he advised me to ignore it. A few years later I spoke to the doctor again because I had heard that thumb-sucking makes teeth grow in crooked. He said, "Nonsense. Forget it."

We have not mentioned this to Hugh in years but it is disconcerting to know that a 12-year-old boy is going to sleep every night with his thumb in his mouth. Do you have any advice? — M. L.

Dear M. L.: Your doctor gave you good advice.

Parents should never shame, scold or threaten a child who sucks his thumb. Concentrate on giving the boy more attention and praise—and reassurance that he is loved. He clings to this childish habit because it gives him a feeling of security.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps her dignity and her boy friend, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

A Lovelier You

By Mary Sue Miller

New Grace for the Arms

The awkward arm is never an asset. But it becomes a downright liability when bared by sleeveless dresses and swim suits.

Happily every woman can have lissome arms. Awkwardness seldom stems from physical defects, but always from poor carriage. Just by weeding er action to rest gracefully or reach out to grasp anything from another's hand is the salt shaker.

Since some arms, like their possessors, are overtense, an unrelaxing routine would not go amiss—one such as this: Raise arms to sides at shoulder level, and drop them to sides; leading with wrists, raise arms forward and drop. Perform before a mirror, and you will see grace in the budding.

Let me help you with the problems of a too-fleshy arm, chest or upper back by sending you my leaflet, Trimmers and Slimmers. It contains a set of coordinated spot reducing exercises—easy to do, quick to get results. Just write Mary Sue Miller in care of Appleton Post-Crescent, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and five cents in coin to cover handling.

Stopped Breathing Can Result In Permanent Body Damage

BY LOIS BLACKBURN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

When breathing is stopped for any reason, the resulting condition is known as asphyxia. There are many causes of asphyxia, but regardless of cause, restorative measures should be taken at once.

Contrary to popular belief, drowning does not occur with water going into the lungs. Usually the victim of drowning tries to breathe under water with the mouth closed. This reflex closure of the posterior pharynx obstructs the trachea and suffocation occurs. Water entering the mouth usually goes to the stomach.

Restoring breathing after drowning can present difficulties. The victim must be moved from the water before first aid can be started. This uses up vital minutes in the oxygen flow to the body party.

First, the mouth and throat of the victim should be cleared of any foreign substance. Tilt the patient's head back and lift the lower jaw. Open his mouth and close the nose by holding with thumb and finger. Take a deep breath of air and cover the patient's mouth, making an airtight seal with yours. Exhale forcefully into the patient's mouth. Watch his chest for any sign of rising. When the chest moves remove your mouth so he can exhale fully. Repeat this forced breathing every four or five seconds until the person inhales on his own or a doctor advises otherwise.

If you are treating a child, blow into the mouth and nose of the child in gentle puffs.

This method can be used in the case of a hard blow to the head or solar plexus. In event of such a fall or blow, usually the activity of the respiratory center is impaired which controls the movement of the diaphragm and chest muscles. If breath stoppage is longer than a minute, the victim should be treated for asphyxia at once.

Other causes of asphyxia are gas inhalation, electric shock, suffocation, strangulation, overdose of drugs, breathing solvent vapors or freezing. Each should be treated as quickly as possible.

For centuries men have tried to understand breath stoppage. Before Bible times a person whose breathing had stopped was laid on his back. Another person jumped on his chest with the idea that this would cause an involuntary gasp forcing air into the lungs. Hot pitch was often thrown on a person's chest also with the idea again that a gasp would evolve.

Another early method was to place a small sapling which had been bent over. This was then moved up and down rhythmically in an effort to restore breathing. At times a person was lashed to a horse face down and the horse driven at a trot with the idea that the movement of the horse jogged the air in and out of the victim.

During the 16 century a bellows was used as a mechanical resuscitation instrument. The pipe of the bellows was placed in the victim's nose and the bellows was squeezed to blow the air into the body. This was the forerunner of a pulmotor.

Later in the 18th century a drowned person was placed over a barrel and the barrel was rolled back and forth to rock the water out of the body.

Whatever the cause of loss of breath, the thing to remember Mr. and Mrs. Walter Milis. Prevent further damage to the body.

Have Healthy Hair

Is your hair misbehaving? Does it seem to have a mind of its own? You can't seem to tame it into style and shape? Could be you need to be hair-conditioned?

Summertime is funtime and suntime. It's also hard-on-the-hair-time. Constant exposure to sun, wind, and water, the ingredients of summer, whips the natural oils and moisture out of hair, leaving it brittle, dry and dull. A solution to this summer problem is a conditioner with a rich lanolin formula that restores moisture balance and the natural oils so vital to hair beauty and health. It makes hair soft and manageable, while giving a luxurious gloss to even the most dried-out hair. And, the nice thing is that it works instantly.

Another early method was to place a small sapling which had been bent over. This was then moved up and down rhythmically in an effort to restore breathing. At times a person was lashed to a horse face down and the horse driven at a trot with the idea that the movement of the horse jogged the air in and out of the victim.

During the 16 century a bellows was used as a mechanical resuscitation instrument. The pipe of the bellows was placed in the victim's nose and the bellows was squeezed to blow the air into the body. This was the forerunner of a pulmotor.

Scared of Politics,' Peggy Goldwater Says She'll Follow Her Husband in Campaign

BY FRANCES LEWINE
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Barry Goldwater's wife, Peggy, is really running scared—scared of politics, she says.
"Frankly," she conceded as campaign appearances and interviews loom ahead, "I'm just not used to it."
Just the same, Mrs. Goldwater—like the rest of the family—will be pitching in to campaign for the handsome, gray-haired Republican candidate for president—Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.
"I'll be with him wherever he goes," she pledged. But she added firmly, "I don't make speeches."

Family Man
The Goldwaters-for-Barry include his two pretty married daughters, two budding-businessmen bachelor sons, four grandchildren and two pet dogs. They know the candidate as an outdoor camper, family photographer, pilot and chauffeur, ham radio operator, gadgeteer and off-time prankster.
Gently reared wife Peggy has gone along with rugged Westerner Barry in all his hobbies and energetic activities, even to riding turbulent waves in rubber rafts.

But while he takes to campaigning with zest, it's no family secret that Margaret Johnson Goldwater, only daughter of a wealthy Muncie, Ind., industrialist, would have preferred her husband to remain the businessman she married 30 years ago.
"Maybe I'll get accustomed to it," she sighed during a pre-convention interview in their Phoenix desert hilltop home.

An introvert in a family of extroverts, Mrs. Goldwater says her fears about campaigning include worrying about her husband, worrying that she might "say something wrong" in an interview, and being "scared to death" about making a speech.
"I admire people able to be relaxed and not scared like I am," she said.

The tumultuous pace of conventions has been hard to take for Mrs. Goldwater.
She came away from the hectic 1960 convention with a stomach ulcer. With careful dieting, she said it was cured in six months.

When asked if there were any signs of recurrence in this campaign, Mrs. Goldwater said with nervous humor "I'll let you know after the election."
Also disturbing to her in public life is a nerve deafness in her right ear. She asks people to sit on her left side so they won't think she's ignoring them when she doesn't hear.

Studied Art
Pleasant, gracious and without pretense, brown-haired blue-eyed Mrs. Goldwater has centered her interest on home, family and a close circle of long-time friends.
She studied art and dress-designing in early years and hopes to get back to painting, although "I'm not a good artist."

She says she would have liked to pursue a career and for a time ran her own dress shop. When she wanted to go to work in the Goldwater store, she recalls, Barry put his foot down.
Despite her lack of time for civic activities now, in the early years of her marriage, Mrs. Goldwater helped found and was president of the Phoenix Planned Parenthood Association, and worked in the Junior League. She still remains on the St. Luke's Hospital Board of Visitors.

Lengthy Separations
The main impact of politics on the Goldwaters has been separations and lengthening absences of the senator from "Ben-Nun-I-Kin." Navajo for house-on-top-of-the-hill, the $150,000 gadget-filled dream house he built to be "our final roosting place."

More than 2,000 miles separated Goldwater and his wife on her 5th birthday—July 8, the day before she flew from Phoenix to this convention city.

But Goldwater had ordered her birthday gift—a circle diamond and emerald pin.
"We've always been a close family," says Barry Jr., whose 26th birthday came the night his father's name was placed in nomination. A lean six-footer, with blue eyes and light brown hair, he looks like his father and like him is a pilot and amateur photographer.

Dispelling the idea that it has been "life without father" for the Goldwaters, young Barry said now they manage to maintain this closeness "spiritually, even though physically apart."

The boys have found a special closeness with their father, he said, by actively participating in his campaign. Young Barry took leave from his stockbroker job with the firm of Noble and Tufts, Los Angeles, and brother, Michael, 24, left his trainee post in Phoenix's big Guaranty Bank, to get on the campaign trail last January.

Chairman of "Youth for Goldwater," Barry Jr. said he traveled to every state of the Union and made two speeches a day for the last five months, "but it still doesn't come easy."

"The problem Michael and I had," he explained, "was that we had both led our own lives—in schools and business. The only politics we had was the little bit we came in contact with from guests in the house and newspapers. It was learning about politics and it was hard. Our big challenge was to get in there and learn politics so we could discuss things like the United Nations, China, Europe and the Common Market."

Both the senator and his wife come from wealthy families. Goldwater's pioneer forebears built up the big department store he left college to head after his father's death.

Widened in Arizona
Mrs. Goldwater's father, Ray Prescott Johnson, was president of the Warner Gear Co. and a founder of Borg-Warner Corp. of Muncie, Ind., makers of automotive parts and equipment.
Her family used to take winter vacations in Phoenix and her father suffered a stroke there and died in the fall of 1932, just about the time she had met Barry.

The story of their whirlwind courtship and Goldwater's New Year's Eve proposal in a telephone booth is now a family legend. They were married Sept. 22, 1934 in an Episcopal church. Tradition-minded the Goldwaters saw to it that their children attended some of the same schools they did. The boys like their father went to Staunton, Va., Military Academy. But they went on to finish college, ago.

Mythical Money

Inflation Hits Dreams Of Millionaire's Life

NEW YORK (AP)—Sidelw... ly boost his dream fortune from a million dollars to $25 million the fun out of life. And inflation or so? It is hard to do. It isn't taking a lot of the fun out of the price of dreaming is worth it. The price of dreaming is going up, up, up! It costs much more to dream now than it used to.

Inflation, that bane of our workday life, has now also invaded the world of the imagination in which, through fantasy, we achieve all our goals. To get what he wants from his dreams, a daydreamer finds he must spend much more mythical money than did the daydreamer of a generation ago.

This is true of both kids and adults. As a child, I dreamed of finding a nickel, a dime, or—in a really expansive mood—a quarter. To dream of finding a quarter was to spend a wild afternoon in valhalla.

Gigantic Sum. That gigantic sum would buy five big stacks of penny loonies, a nickel ice cream cone, a nickel sack of popcorn, and a dime ticket to the Saturday afternoon movie.

To a modern child, being actually given a quarter is hardly a dream situation. It wouldn't get him very far. To spend a delicious afternoon such as I dreamed of in childhood he'd have to have well over a dollar.

Grownup dreams are getting even more high-priced. This doesn't bother some people. They are spendthrift dreamers. They are printing-press-money dreamers. Whatever they dream they'd like to have or do, they dream up the money to buy it—and never mind the cost.

Well, to me that's teen-age stuff—adolescent dreaming, grandiose and irresponsible.

Tightwad Dreamer. I am not exactly a tightwad dreamer, but I think even in dreaming you have to set a limit. You have to get your money's worth, and there is no point in being wasteful.

But no matter how careful a man is with his dream dollars, he finds now that they have fallen in value. He must spend more of them or else lower the standard of his dreaming, which a fellow hates to do just as much as he hates to lower the standard of his actual living.

For years my dream goal was to live like a millionaire. To do this I figured I'd have a small steam yacht for world travel, a penthouse on Park Avenue, a well-staffed mansion in the country, a racing stable, a hideaway villa on the French Riviera, a couple of limousines, a few racing cars.

Dozen Servants. Naturally, there'd be a dozen or so servants around. A man can get awfully tired of opening his own champagne bottles day after day.

Well, it was a lovely dream and it kept me happy for years. But now it is smashed to smithereens. I made the mistake of confiding my dream to a friend who is expert in tax and financial matters.

"How much money do you think it would take you to live the way you think a millionaire lives?" he asked.

"Why, a million dollars," I replied. He laughed. "You must be kidding. Anybody with only a million dollars who tried to live like that would wind up panhandling on the Bowery in less than six months."

"You'll have to upgrade your dreams. What you need is $25 million to $50 million—and even then you might have to cut down on your racing stable, and keep your yacht in drydock part of the year."

He left me crushed. Who at my age wants to have to sudden-

Today's Etiquette

BY LOUISE DAVIS

ADOPTION NOTICE

Dear Louise: When a baby has been adopted, do the new parents send out birth announcements? We hope that we will soon have a three-month-old boy and want to do the right thing.

Answers: The custom is to issue adoption announcements.

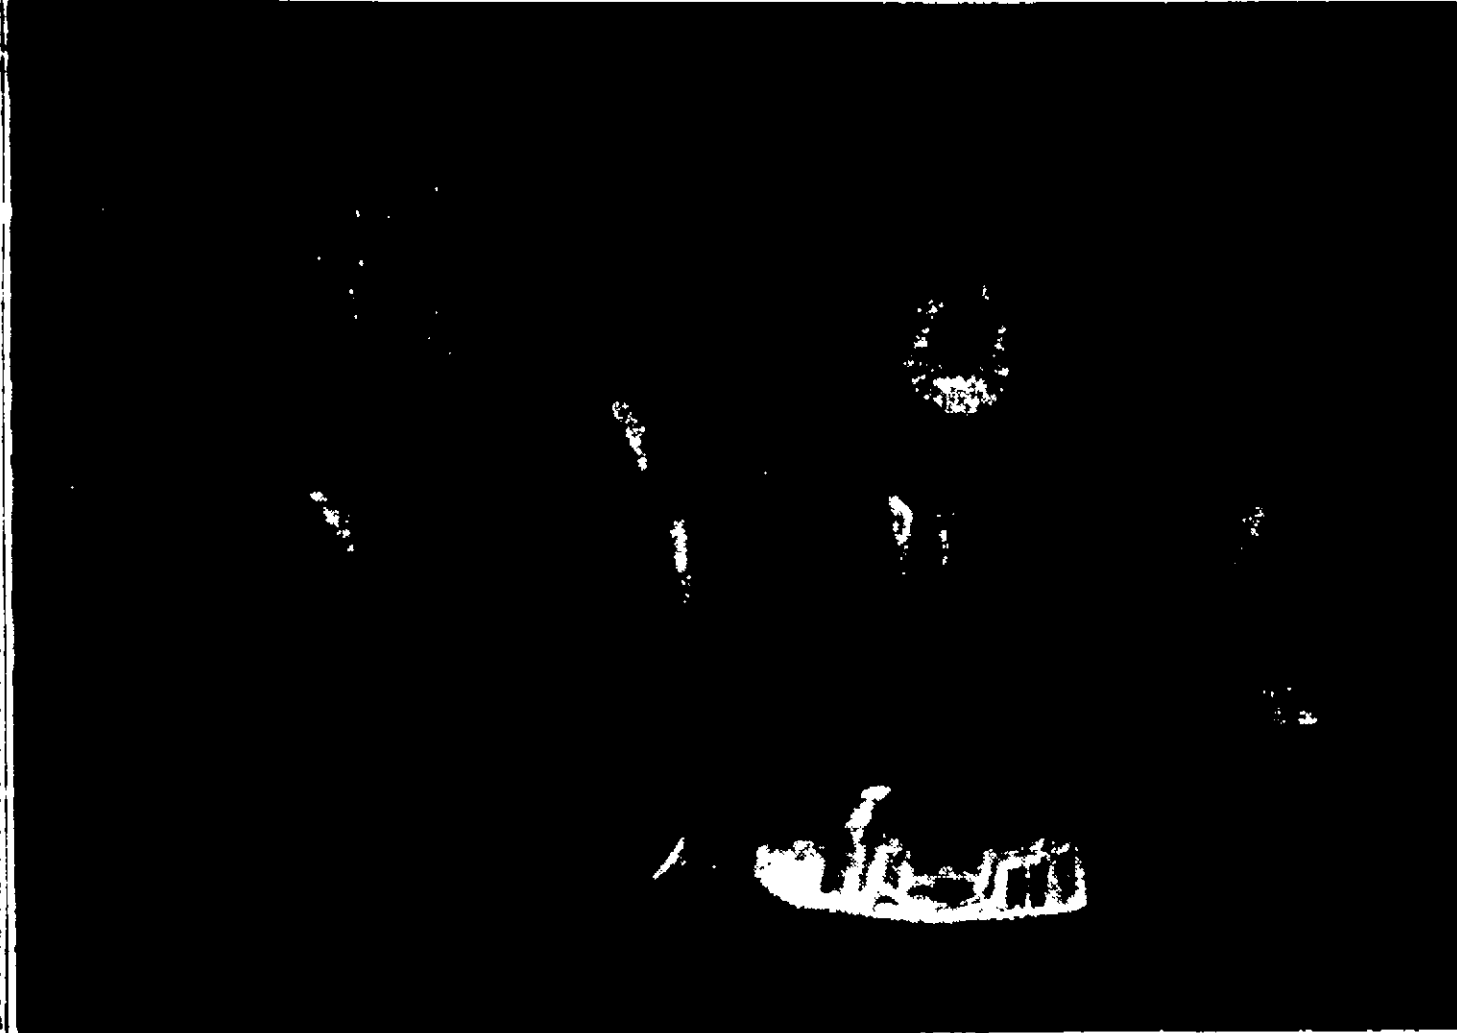

Louise Davis writes, not birth announcements. There are various ways of doing it from the formal to the informal. An example of the formal way would be the following on an engraved card: Mr. and Mrs. Vincent K. Daniels announce the adoption of a daughter, Mary Elizabeth born the twelfth of May. Printing is acceptable too. If you prefer to be less formal, you might find adoption cards at stationers. The information to be filled in by hand. Sometimes adoption notices are sent out on mimeographed cards or letters. Or you may prefer to do it in your own inimitable way. The sky is the limit, just so the method isn't too corny.

KNIFE ETIQUETTE
Dear Louise: When cutting meat at a dinner table, may one cut several pieces or is all of it cut at a time? When resting the knife across the plate, does the blade go to the right or to the left?

Louise Davis Answers: One bite-sized piece of meat should be cut at a time and then eaten. When the knife rests across the plate, the blade is to ward the left. When the fork is not in use, it is placed to the left of the knife and so close to it that the two are almost touching. The positions are reversed for left handers.

High Blood Pressure

If you are one of the estimated five million Americans with high blood pressure, the Wisconsin Heart Association reminds you that your physician can help you keep it under control.

To Your Good Health

Arthritis, Degeneration Of Bones Called Similar

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D., called degenerative arthritis. Es-

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the difference between arthritis and bone degeneration? Does the former cause the latter? Can sodium salicylate (10 gr.) be taken twice a day indefinitely with no harmful effects? —MRS. A.G.O.

Both of the Molner terms (arthritis and bone degeneration) are general and cover a multitude of conditions. Osteoarthritis, in fact, is often so you can choose an appropriate treatment.

The sodium salicylate is not an excessive dosage. Considerably larger ones have been taken for many, many years without harm.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that formaldehyde is put in milk during the pasteurization process? I have just been told that this is the case.—D.G.

No, this is absolutely untrue. Pasteurization consists solely of heating milk (or sometimes other foods) to a moderate temperature which destroys bacteria.

It is, in fact, against the law to add any harmful chemicals to foods, and that takes care of this rumor about formaldehyde.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 15-year-old daughter has had an ulcer of the duodenum for two years. She has taken medicine and watched her diet but it still hasn't healed. What is your opinion of the new freezing method? Maybe you may have heard of this doctor who discovered the method.—MRS. V.S.

Yes I've heard and read a lot about this method, and I respect the brilliant mind which developed the idea. But it is no magic panacea.

It entails some risk, requires very specialized skill, cannot be guaranteed to succeed for everybody, and it is NOT an easy way to let people with ulcers ignore their diets and other methods of preventing new ulcers from forming.

It doesn't give you a brand new stomach or duodenum. The method should be used only in carefully selected cases.

Slashed-Top Frock Rivals Topless Dress

BY LOUISE BRICKMAN

ROME (AP)—Titti Brugnoli offered today a breather in the topless race at the Italian fashion openings. Her evening de-olite was a barely noticeable slash from neck to waist.

Since the showings for fall and winter opened Monday, there have been topless shoes, topless gloves, almost topless nightgowns and so-called "antitopless" cocktail and evening gowns which left the midriff bare.

Brugnoli showed the slash on short and long dresses of thin black velvet. The short version was in lace-patterned cut velvet on chiffon. The slash was outlined in wide black satin ribbon that spilled into a series of loops over the soft, slim skirt.

Hard to Spot Crime In Play

Students of crime will find something to interest them in the report of today's hand. It's easy to detect the criminal by guesswork alone, but spotting his crime is not nearly so easy.

West led the king of spades, and dummy's ace won. Declarer drew two rounds of trumps and then led the ten of clubs for a finesse. East won with the king of clubs and returned the deuce of diamonds.

South played the nine of diamonds, and West won with the ten. Now West had to take the ace of diamonds in a hurry since otherwise declarer would discard two diamonds on dummy's good clubs. The defenders got only two diamonds and one club, so South made his contract.

Of course you know the criminal and his crime—or do you? Decide for yourself before you read on, but take a second look to make sure you've seen all the skulduggery.

There was one obvious crime in the play of the cards. When East got the king of clubs he should return the jack of diamonds instead of the deuce. Then West would get three diamond tricks, defeating the contract.

Give East credit for switching to diamonds; a spade return would have been completely useless. But throw East into jail anyway for failing to lead the jack of diamonds.

But if you've tucked away your magnifying glass. Sherlock, you'd better take up gin rummy. South was just as big

All Should Cooperate in Family When Visiting

BY DR. EVE JONES

Dear Dr. Jones: We have two younger children and two teenage ones. Last week we visited some friends in another city for a few days and took the younger children with us.

The reason I mention the older children is that every one, including the friends we visited, always remark on how polite and helpful the teenagers are. And that always makes me think of how many times I have had to remind them to help out with their share of the family chores.

Believe me, it hasn't been easy to keep after them. But I know it pays off in children I'm proud of and other people like and enjoy.

Well, the first night of our visit, at dinner, I reminded our youngsters to take away their plates and to help clear the table, as usual. I honestly didn't notice that the two children of our friends, both about the same ages as ours, were just sitting there waiting to be waited on by their mother.

The same thing happened at breakfast the next morning. Then, before dinner, my husband called me aside and suggested that I stop asking our children to help because our friends might think I was trying to show them how to bring up their children, although that really wasn't my idea at all.

To keep peace, I agreed. And I sought to watch my children take it easy for the next five meals. You could just see that they knew they were getting away with something.

Since then, I've been thinking about that. And I'm convinced we should have continued to treat our children exactly the way we always do. What do you think? MRS. G. P.

Your husband's concern was probably unnecessary. If your friend doesn't think she should ask her children to help her, she probably wouldn't be bothered by watching you ask your children to share the chores.

In fact, she'd probably just feel sorry for them and be compensating herself, mentally, for being so "lax" to her own.

Tell your husband that the next time a similar situation arises, you think he ought to offer to take the place of his children and help out.

If he doesn't think he ought to take over the responsibilities, he relieves the children of, perhaps the best plan is to go to a hotel where all of you can get a change from routine family responsibilities.

For a personal reply to children with your child care problems, write to Dr. Eve Jones, care of the Appleton Post-Crescent, enclosing a stamped, addressed envelope. Dr. Jones is also happy to learn your reactions and to receive your comments and suggestions.

Appleton Engineers Plan Study On Town of Grand Chute Flooding

Problem Exists in Ballard Road Area
After Rainfalls; 2 Solutions Discussed

City of Appleton engineers there is to absorb water. Bues will conduct a study of flooding said the result is that water in the Town of Grand Chute runoff is faster and heavier near the northeast corner of the city.

Instructions to conduct the study will be conducted during the summer by the Board of Public Works after Grand Chute representatives appeared before the board at a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Members of the board agreed to the proposal because the city is a major factor in causing the flooding according to city and town officials.

The portion of Grand Chute most severely affected is adjacent to Appleton's 16th Ward west of Ballard Road at Northland Avenue (County Trunk 00).

Water in Barn

One Grand Chute representative said that during recent storms he has had as much as one foot of water in his barn, even though the rain was relatively light. Others reported similar heavy flooding.

Public Works Director Robert Bues said the area is in a natural watershed that drains east from the city.

He explained that the more the city is built up, the less soil open ditch to carry storm water away. It probably would require a 300-foot wide strip of land of undetermined length.

Thus, he said, would be less expensive than a storm sewer, but would require more maintenance. It also would have a greater capacity than a storm sewer and would be serviceable for a longer period of time.

A storm sewer would require a pipe about eight feet in diameter to handle runoff, Bues said. Its cost would be almost twice that of a green belt, but land through which the pipe would pass would be usable once the facility is installed. There would be almost no maintenance, Bues said.

GOP Nominee Lauds Newsmen

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sen.

Barry Goldwater, the Republican presidential nominee, praised the men who have reported and broadcast the Republican National Convention and thanked the reporters who have regularly covered his campaign.

He praised coverage of the convention at his first news conference as the nominee.

Goldwater said television coverage of the convention has made it more inviting to sit at home and watch "with a cool piece of watermelon" than to be on hand in a steaming auditorium.

As Goldwater left, he stopped in a cluster of newsmen who have been covering his campaign from the start, and said:

Like Congratulates Goldwater on Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower congratulated Sen. Barry Goldwater Wednesday night on his winning of the Republican presidential nomination and applauded Gov. William W. Scrantom for his call for party unity.

The Pennsylvania governor's move "has vastly hastened our chances for victory in November," Eisenhower said.

The former president's visits were given over ABC by James Hagerty, formerly White House press secretary for Eisenhower and now an ABC executive.

"I want to thank all of you for your fair treatment of me through all these seven months."

Much Enjoyment For Sen. Smith In Nomination

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sen. Margaret Chase Smith didn't get many votes, but she enjoyed every minute of her historic nominating scene at the Cow Palace.

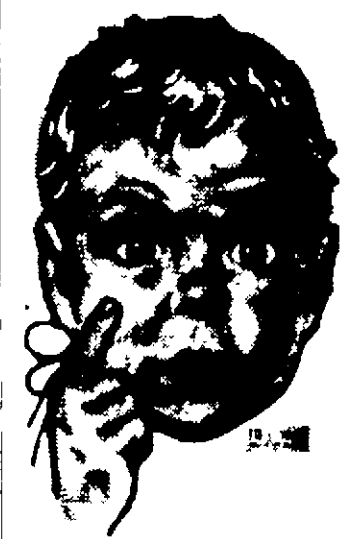

And it was a thing to remember. The demonstration was lively and long enough to be a creditable showing. Her fans waved red roses, the band played "Everything's Coming Up Roses," and Mrs. Smith, in a rose-red suit, sat on the edge of her box seat smiling approval. The placards proclaimed her a "woman of courage." And so did her nominators.

The convention cast 27 votes for Mrs. Smith, the senator from Maine, who was the first woman ever to run for the presidential nomination of a major political party. And it was a better showing than had been expected.

Clare Boothe Luce, former congresswoman, ambassador and author of a caustic play entitled "The Women," came up to tell Mrs. Smith "it's a great day for women." Mrs. Luce had been a second for the winner, Sen. Barry Goldwater.

"It really is a great day," echoed the silver-haired Mrs. Smith, 66, beaming.

AP Survey Predicted Nomination Forecast Came Within 25 Votes Of Ballot Total

Forecast Came Within 25 Votes Of Ballot Total

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A steady stream of reports on where convention delegates stood, distributed by The Associated Press beginning last March, foreshadowed Sen. Barry Goldwater's nomination.

The Associated Press came within 25 votes of forecasting the Arizona's first-ballot total. The reports enabled Associated Press members to publish and broadcast a continuing count of delegate totals long before the convention opened. AP staffers in every state helped compile the totals.

Delegate positions were assigned on the basis of instructions from state and district party conventions on whom to support, commitments by primary election laws, personal pledges and statements from delegates favorable to a candidate, and not strictly bound.

AP tabulation
One week before the convention opened, this was the score in the AP tabulation, with 985 votes pledged to nominate:

Goldwater 711, Henry Cabot Lodge 45, Richard M. Nixon 3, Nelson A. Rockefeller 102, William W. Scranton 151, others 129 and uncommitted 176.

Wednesday night, before large blocs of votes swung into the senator's column after the first ballot, the vote stood this way:

Goldwater 553, Lodge 217, Rockefeller 114, Scranton 214, and others 54.

And on the final AP survey of the 1,306 delegates, transmitted shortly before the convention roll call the count read:

Goldwater 553, Scranton 217, Rockefeller 110, others 112 and uncommitted 11.

British Postal Group Out on 24-Hour Strike

LONDON (AP)—More than 100,000 British postal workers struck for 24 hours today, bringing total stoppage to mails all jammed by a slowdown.

Millions of letters were piled up in sorting offices across the country.

The strikers—sorters, mailmen and drivers—are demanding a 10 per cent hike in basic wages that average $33.60 a week. The government is offering a 4 per cent with another hike after a review of pay and conditions.

Governors Cool to Advisors

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Three former Southern governors encountered cold, cool and warm reactions in their civil rights law advisory mission to five incumbent Southern governors.

A sixth chief executive, Gov. Donald Russell of South Carolina, brushed aside a meeting with the group. He said he did not invite them to his state.

None of the other governors saw any need of help from the special team, headed by Lelley Collins, director of the new Community relations Service set up to help in problems arising from the civil rights law.

Collins is a former Florida governor. With him on the tour were Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges, former North Carolina governor, and Buford Ellington, former Tennessee governor.

Some Message
They got the same message everywhere—in effect, "Everything is fine here. Don't call us, we'll call you."

Perhaps the most favorable reaction came from Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina. He called the visit a "mission of good will."

"I'm impressed that the service is not an enforcement agency. It will serve to better relations of good will," Sanford said.

Sanford also urged compliance with the new law.

A somewhat stiff reaction came from Gov. Farris Bryant of Florida. He said he had no intention of enforcing the civil rights law and would not invite the aid of CRS.

Law Abiding
"I think that my approach to the civil rights bill is exactly like my approach to the income tax law," Bryant said. "I propose to maintain a climate in which law-abiding citizens can operate."

"I don't propose to collect income taxes and I don't propose to enforce civil rights."

Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee issued this guarded statement:

"They have not proposed to suggest any interference with the affairs of Tennessee. But they made it clear they would be available if we requested assistance."

In Georgia, Gov. Carl E. Sanders said after meetings with Collins and the other two men: "I told them I don't think we'll need their services in Georgia."

Gov. Albertis S. Harrison Jr. of Virginia met with the group and said his state was enjoying splendid racial relations.

"These gentlemen hope very much their service will not be needed but if it is, it will be available," he said.

Friends Fete Goldwater on Nomination

Acquaintances in Arizona Confident About His Ability

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Arizona Republicans and friends of Barry Goldwater celebrated in a variety of ways Wednesday night when the senator won his party's presidential nomination.

Many spent the evening at home in front of a television set. One pulled out a high school annual which displayed a young Goldwater as president of the Phoenix Union freshman class of 1927.

The president's message that year included the fact that the class members were "well worth watching."

The most jubilation occurred at Goldwater's headquarters near downtown Phoenix.

Some Persons
An estimated 50 persons sat in the offices, laughing, joking and predicting victory in November once the nomination became official.

Democrat Carl Bimson, a friend of 31 years, sat at home with his wife watching the convention.

"I was president of the American Banking Association in 1960-61," Bimson said. "I must have traveled 175,000 miles. I was stunned at the effect Barry was having, particularly in the South. The parents of college youngsters asked me about him because their children had heard Barry speak and thought so highly of him."

Youth, Experience
"I explained his magnetism by saying he was able to bridge two generations. He has the adventurous spirit of youth combined with the knowledge and experience of age. But I told them I never thought he could get the nomination because he was so frank."

Insurance man Milton Saunders, a friend since 1932, declared: "I'm just as proud as anyone in Arizona. But it's hard to realize that somebody you've known real well is probably going to be president. He'll make a terrific one."

Back at the Phoenix Goldwater headquarters they were echoing the same view. Association said it would make the city a "non-competitive high-wage island" and predicted 66,000 persons would lose their jobs.

The state's minimum wage of $1.15 is to be increased on Oct. 1 to $1.25, which is the federal minimum wage for businesses in interstate commerce.

Confident of Election
Goldwater's Mother
Calm After Nomination

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The mother of Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater reacted calmly when her son received the Republican presidential nomination.

Said Mrs. Baron (Josephine) Goldwater: "I've gotten so used to this that it doesn't bother me."

None-the-less, for three days and nights, the 59-year-old woman has sat in front of her television set watching the San Francisco convention intently.

"I've been very much interested in these activities," she said. Once a pioneer Arizona nurse, Mrs. Goldwater has remained strong. She lives with a woman companion, Susan Armstrong, formerly of Chicago, but moves about her two-story Phoenix home with authority.

She likes to do things for herself. As she reached for a cigarette Wednesday, a visitor offered to light it for her.

"No thank you," she declared. "I do that myself. I'm strong as a man."

The nominee's mother weighs 95 pounds and is 5-feet-5. She lives on the second floor.

"All my life, I lived in a two-story house. Those stairs don't bother me," she said.

Like her famous son, her jaw is thrust forward; her nose is long, solid. Her voice is strong. She has enjoyed the convention.

"Do you know about the Scranton letter?" she grinned. (Goldwater's chief rival, Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, sent the Arizona a blistering message.)

"Barry did just right. He just sent the letter back. I didn't mind that letter. It was just part of the political game."

"No, I don't mind name-calling, but I do think it's foolish for people to knock each other. We're all human beings, though, and we all have our thoughts about other people. Of course, some of us keep them to ourselves."

She said she never expected her son to seek the presidency, "but that's all right. I want him to do whatever he wants to do."

Now that Goldwater has won the GOP nomination, his mother worries a little about the future.

"Well, of course, since he's running, he's going to be elected," she said. "But it's such a thankless job."

Council Delays Move to Hire New Attorney

Recommendations Of 2 Committees To Be Restudied

Two committee reports recommending Appleton hire a part-time, temporary city attorney were referred back to committee Wednesday night as the city council apparently moved to cut short a lengthy meeting.

Action had been expected on recommendations of the personnel and finance committees in a council meeting with an already jammed agenda.

The meeting lasted until almost 10:30 p.m.

In the case of each committee, the respective chairmen—Ald. E. V. Krueger (11th), personnel committee, and Ald. Harold H. Hansenman (10th), finance committee—asked for the vote to refer back.

The motions were approved unanimously.

Issuance of a total of $1,360,000 in bonds to pay for various public works projects also was approved.

College Avenue Parking Test Gets Council Okay

Merchants Object to Proposal, But Aldermen Vote 16-3 to Start 'Front-to-Back' Plan July 27

By Tom Richards

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A plan to test "front-to-back" parking on College Avenue was approved from the Appleton city council Wednesday in spite of objections from businessmen and several aldermen.

The test will be conducted July 27 to Aug. 31 on both sides of the 100 blocks of E. and W. College Avenue. The vote was 16 to 3.

Elmer Rehbein, major spokesman for objecting businessmen, said the test, which it has been estimated would eliminate about 30 per cent of the parking stalls, would be harmful to business.

"I don't feel it's fair for us to be made guinea pigs," he said.

Explains Difference

Police Chief Earl Wolff explained front-to-back or "paired" parking to the council in comparison to College Avenue's present angle parking.

Originally, stalls were laid out at a 45-degree angle at 14-foot intervals along the curb, he said. After it was discovered traffic lanes under this plan were too narrow, the angle was reduced to 35 degrees.

Wolff said stalls at this angle normally require a curb width of almost 20 feet, but the 14-foot wide stalls were maintained on College Avenue.

Paired parking requires two 19-foot stalls with eight feet of maneuvering space at each end of the pair of stalls.

Wolff said this system would leave College with four 12-foot traffic lanes. Exit from spaces would be safer than with angle parking, he said.

However, Rehbein said merchants are not interested in improving through traffic. We only want people to stop and spend money, he said.

Difficult Way

He described parallel parking as difficult and tending to slow up traffic.

Ald. Al Stoeckbauer (4th) disagreed with Wolff on the safety factor. He said his car had been hit on two occasions while leaving parallel parking spaces on Wisconsin Avenue.

Ald. Frederick S. Ziemann (6th) asked Public Safety Committee Chairman Ald. Robert Stumpf (9th) why the committee had picked this time for the study.

"In July, 1963," Stumpf said, "the council requested us to consider parking in the downtown area and we decided it was high time we got it out with the beginning of College Avenue reconstruction just around the corner."

Best Time of Year

"We contacted various College Avenue merchants and asked them what the best time of year for the test would be, and they said the summer."

The committee chairman said he will ask Wolff to assign someone to survey who actually is using the stalls and how they like it, "so when the time comes we will have the facts and figures."

A vote, came after Stumpf assured the council angle parking would be restored at the end of the test.

Opposing the measure were Ald. Stoeckbauer, Norman Beyer (20th) and Richard G. Hussman (1st). Ald. Mrs. Dorothy Stullings (7th) voted present. One alderman was absent.

Voluntary Controls Top GOP's Farm Platform

Position Provides Sharp Contrast With Democratic Program of Setting Quotas

By John Wymgaard

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — The Republican appeal to farmers as contained in the new party platform follows the lines of voluntary commodity control programs as advocated by the leading Republican politicians of Wisconsin.

Full endorsement of farm co-operatives and especially rural producers, the GOP position will provide a sharp contrast with Democratic preferences for government production and marketing quotas such as have been offered by the national Democratic Party and leading Wisconsin Democrats in recent years.

Wilbur Runk, who will be the Republican nominee for U.S. Senator in Wisconsin without opposition in the fall, said the party platform squares with his own views, and especially the pledge to support withdrawal of surplus crop lands from production.

"In Wisconsin," he said, "we could withdraw up to a quarter of our agricultural acres for the long-range benefit of farming."

Indict Administration

In its indictment of the national administration, the Republican can platform complains about the currently low parity ratio in the farm price support program, and the authorization of beef imports at a time of cattle price slumps, a sensitive issue in Wisconsin farm districts which are increasingly involved in beef production.

The platform conforms to those necessities, as the Wisconsin politicians here perceived. In its essential respects, the farm plank echoes the record and attitude of its chief architect, Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R-7th, chairman of the convention platform committee.

It is an endorsement of government farm groups including the farm bureau.

Move to Rescind Bellaire Park's Road Action Fails

Alderman Ayers Labels Street In Controversy 'Superhighway'

A move to rescind previous action on Bellaire Park failed Wednesday night as the Appleton City Council tangled itself in parliamentary procedure.

Ald. John F. Ayers (12th) said he felt work on a road through the park had started "sooner that we thought it would," and aldermen should reconsider their May 6 vote.

He also said, as he had to the park board earlier in the week, that the proposed road would become a "superhighway" type of road instead of a park road.

With Ayers' motion to rescind on the floor, another was offered to allow residents of the Bellaire park area to speak.

Before action could be taken, Ald. Frederick S. Ziemann (6th), suggested, but did not formally move to refer the matter back to proper committees for reconsideration.

Discusses Procedures
Then came a discussion of parliamentary procedure, left temporarily unresolved as the council shifted to discussion of the park problem.

During this discussion, it was pointed out that a problem of a commercial St. Neenah, was ordered place to put fill resulting from work on Randall Avenue, no longer existed.

An agreement to dump fill on a right of way has been signed with the Chicago and North Western Railway Co.

Finally, Ziemann said he would not move to refer back, and the motion to allow residents to speak was withdrawn.

Mayer Clarence Mitchell called for a vote.

ed for a vote on the motion to rescind, and the proposal failed on a 7-9 vote.

A two-thirds majority is needed for passage of a motion to rescind previous council action.

Bad Conduct Costs 4 Men Court Fines

Richard R. Sawyer, 521 Sec. 1, Neenah, was fined $90 for disorderly conduct in Winnebago County jail on a charge stemming from an incident at Wisconsin Avenue and Commercial Street July 10.

Sawyer was charged with striking an unidentified person at the intersection.

Arnold Siebert, 1004 N. Commercial St., Neenah, was ordered to pay $35 and court costs for going to jail 15 days. He was arrested at 543 S. Lake St., Neenah, on June 20, for causing a disturbance.

Roger Marquardt, 245 Gruenwald Ave., Neenah, was ordered to pay $125 and court costs for going to jail 45 days. He was arrested June 25 on West Wisconsin Avenue after being in a fight.

Mayer Clarence Mitchell called for a vote.

Crime Experts Studying Knife Found on Farm

Seek Clues in Stabbing Death Of Mrs. Kildonk

A stainless steel knife found in the lining of a chair in a Black Creek farmhouse where a 28-year-old farmwife was knifed to death in December is still in the hands of the Wisconsin State Crime Laboratory in Madison.

Sheriff Calvin Spice said today, "Spice said all tests on the knife have been completed and he is awaiting its return in order to continue the investigation."

Tests taken at Madison since the knife was found June 11 have shown small traces of blood. Crime laboratory specialists, however, have stated the blood appears to be animal or fish blood. The laboratory report does not discount the possibility that the knife had been washed thoroughly sometime previous to its being placed in the chair lining.

Tests on the knife also involved removing the handles.

Accident Results In $75 Court Fine

MENASHA — Mrs. Lucille F. Landers, 1221 S. Mason St., Appleton, was fined $75 and court costs Wednesday in Winnebago County Branch Three Court on a charge of failing to report striking an unattended vehicle.

She was cited June 25 on Fifth Street by Menasha Police after becoming involved in an accident.

George Glennda, 415 W. 57th St., Minneapolis, was fined $10 and ordered to pay $11 in court costs by Judge James V. Sitter following a trial in which Glennda defended himself against a charge of speeding 42 miles per hour in a 25 mile an hour zone. He pleaded innocent in an earlier appearance in June.

Democrat's Papers Declared Legal

Wilbert C. Brick Filing Was Challenger by GOP Officials

A Black Creek tavern owner whose nomination papers for the Third District Assembly seat from the papers by County Outagamie County were challenged Wednesday by a Republican Party official Wednesday.

Hazen Denies He Helped Brick

Howard Hazen, an aide on the staff of Gov. John Reynolds, denied today that he helped Wilbert C. Brick, Black Creek, Democratic Party candidate for the Third Assembly District seat, circulate nomination papers.

Hazen made the statement in rebuttal to a charge Wednesday by Harvey Wolfe, Outagamie County Republican chairman, that an employee of Reynolds' staff "using a state of Wisconsin car, drove Brick around in an attempt to get his papers filled out."

Hazen said today "I have been a friend of Brick for years, but I never discussed his candidacy with him. This whole matter is a complete fabrication by Wolfe. I'm making a formal charge (this is just another attempt by the Post-Crescent to smear me)." Hazen said he was not in the Black Creek area to help Brick, that no employee of the governor drives a state-owned car, and that he didn't have anything to do with the matter.

Les Voyageurs Mark Two Holidays

Paris — Appleton's Les Voyageurs added their enthusiasm to the observance of Bastille Day Tuesday, the holiday on which Tuesday, the holiday on which the French celebrate their independence with dancing in the streets and gay hoopla.

And Les Voyageurs made the day complete with an all-American picnic for their French families.

Katie McMahon, Chris Grape and Julie Basset in Cape delayed the celebration until July 8 when Mrs. Kim Miller could join them. They decorated the home with balloons and flags, and climaxed the party with fireworks, sparklers and champagne in the garden.

At first the French families were a bit dubious about the American menu of hamburgers (on French bread), gelatin salad, carrots and celery, potato chips and apple pie with cheese.

They were shocked at eating gelatin (cold and sweet) with the meat course, and cheese with the pie. But the girls insisted that "We do things the French way — today you must do things the American way" and they discovered it tasted good after all.

Joe Robinson also observed his 18th birthday in France. The French family with whom he lived in the Paris suburb of Boulogne presented her with a bottle of wine, a bouquet of white gladioli and a red parrot. The American family made the party complete by calling with greetings from across the ocean.

School Budget Up $163,765 in Villages

Expect Tax Rate Hikes of $9.50 in Kimberly, $2.25 For Combined Locks Area

KIMBERLY—Based on 1963 assessment figures, village residents can expect a $9.50 per $1,000 tax hike, and Combined Locks residents a $2.25 increase for school purposes alone if the proposed Joint School District No. 6 budget is approved at the 7 p.m. July 27 public hearing.

Kimberly's rate last year was $5.50 per $1,000, Combined Locks $3.50.

The school board approved a $1,340,000 budget for 1965 or $163,765 higher than the 1964 budget of $1,176,235. Tax levy for 1965 is set at $1,065,610 or $150,002 more than the 1964 levy of $915,608.

Of the total levy Kimberly residents will pay $683,768 or $126,003 more than last year's rate of $557,765. On the basis of a $50 tax rate and a 1963 assessment of $13,261,506, each $1 added to the tax levy brings in about $13,261, thus the $9.50 hike to meet the levy.

Combined Locks will pay $276,411 of the levy or $36,707 more than last year's total of $239,704. On the basis of a $31.50 tax rate and an assessment of $12,131,380, each added $1 of tax levy brings in about $12,131. Other differences in levy shows Town of Buchanan paying $41,504 or $1,504 more than the 1964 figure of $40,000 and Town of Harrison paying $63,925 or $4,852 more than last year's figure of $59,073.

Revised Assessments

Revised 1964 assessments are likely to have some bearing on tax figures. Largest single increase in the budget is in instructional costs which increased $106,015 from $528,410 in 1964 to $634,425 in 1965 due mainly to the increase in the number of teachers and salary increases.

Administrative costs were increased from $24,150 to $29,925, transportation costs were increased from $19,000 to $22,000; from $119,450 to $139,450 due to salary increases and added staff; maintenance costs were increased from $18,200 to $31,550 due to added repair work on older schools; fixed charges increased from $15,850 to $22,670. Other changes noted include food service charges increased from $20,500 to $21,775. Other changes noted include student activities, down from $12,300 to $5,050; recreation, up from $13,700 to $15,750; capital outlay increased from $30,500 to $50,100 due to equipping additional classrooms including a science room at the high school; tuition down from $3,000 to $271,105 to $366,535.

Estimated Receipts

Little change was noted in receipts other than tax levy for the coming school year. Fund balance decreased from $5,508 to $2,364, county aids were increased from $12,500 to $13,750; state aids were increased from $73,000 to $75,000; transportation aids were increased from $5,500 to $7,500 and textbook rental was increased from $4,250 to $5,035.

Other receipts listed include $30,000 for tuition, a decrease of $1,000 from last year; $4,750 from national defense compared to $3,000 last year; $17,500 from receipts both years; $24,000 utility tax both years; $3,000 miscellaneous both years. Rental of property anticipated for next year was set at $1,500 whereas no figure was included last year, but last year $1,000 was received from schools coming into the district compared to none next year.

Receipts other than the tax levy for 1963-64 amounted to $170,257 compared to $174,419 anticipated for 1964-65.

Right to Dissent Defended in Talk By Milwaukeean

OSHKOSH — The right and need to dissent in both the political and the academic worlds was defended by Atty. William Bowman of Milwaukee in his talk Wednesday to the Oshkosh Optimist Club.

The right to dissent should apply to both the liberal and the conservative points of view, Bowman said as he outlined some of the famous dissenters in this country and Europe and the results of such dissent.

Bowman cited the LaFollette Progressive Party and Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy as examples. "It is very difficult to see the attempted destruction of dissent in America because it is not intended that we should see it. It is only intended that those who have the often solitary courage to resist should be manipulated and destroyed," he said.

"In the academic world, dissent is equally necessary and equally rare," Bowman said. "Consequently academic dissent within our country ought to be protected and encouraged. Not only liberal or proletarian dissent deserves encouragement, conservative academic dissent must be protected and encouraged as well."

Youths Caught Taking Melon

WAUPACA — Two 19-year-old Kimberly youths have learned it doesn't pay to snatch watermelons from a supermarket outdoor display.

They were arrested at 2:05 a.m. Sunday when they were caught taking a watermelon from the A and P supermarket on Fulton Street by a Waupaca County Traffic patrolman and a city policeman.

Theda Clark Hospital Ends Its 'Biggest Year,' Figures Show

More Activities In Almost Every Field Is Reported

NEENAH — Theda Clark Memorial Hospital recorded more patients admitted, births, deaths, surgical procedures, patient days and a higher average daily attendance for the fiscal period ending June 30 than for any fiscal period in the past 10 years, according to figures released today.

Hospital officials noted that the period just ending represented the hospital's "biggest year." They said the hospital is "growing in service to the community by achievement through excellence of service."

The hospital was named Modern Hospital of the Month in the United States for February of this year. The award was made on the basis of excellence of architectural design, functional planning, economy of construction and operation, and proper provision for community hospital needs.

Food service at the hospital was also selected in February as the Modern Hospital Food Service of the Month.

The 10-year comparison figures show increasing use of hospital services by the community. The tabulations follow:

Bridge Rule Protested

Minimum Height of 25 Feet Attacked In Menasha Council

NEENAH — Objection to the suggestion of the Corps of Engineers for a standard clearance of 25 feet above low water for all new fixed span bridges in the lower Fox River from Lake Winnebago to DePere was voiced by Oliver Evans, Tri-City Boat Club member, Wednesday night when he appeared at the council meeting. The present clearance is 50 feet above high water.

It was Evans' contention that the boat club had been misquoted, they will favor a 25 foot span as long as it has a lift so that the more than 300 craft in the area can navigate the entire lower Fox River.

Evans urged the councilmen to give the clearance question a lot of consideration before sending its recommendations to the Corps of Engineers. He said that this will set a precedent and all the bridges of the future will be governed by this action, causing future generations to suffer even more.

Lift Span

The boater believed that lifts were quite inexpensive when compared to the revenue that will be turned away from the Valley when only small craft can navigate the water. He also recalled that the river was used to transport supplies during World War II, and it could become necessary again.

Evans said that letters opposing the 25 foot fixed span had been sent to the Corps of Engineers by most boat clubs and many interested citizens.

It was agreed by the council that the recommendation to the Corps be tabled until the next meeting, with the suggestion that Mayor Carl Loehning get all the information available on the question so the council can study the proposal.

Cigarettes Start Blazes in 2 Cars

A woman who told Appleton firemen she did not smoke is pondering how her front and rear seats became heavily damaged from fire as it was parked in the Appleton Memorial Hospital parking lot early this morning.

A package of cigarettes was found lying on the front seat of a car owned by Alice Coenen, route 4, Appleton. Firemen theorized the car was used by itinerant "parkers" who may have dropped a cigarette, then fled the car when the fire started. The fire was reported about 12:10 a.m.

Fire also damaged the front seat of a car driven by Donald Verhagen, route 2, Kaukauna, about 9:24 p.m. on E College Avenue. The fire was caused by a dropped cigarette.

OK Bergstrom Addition Aid

NEENAH — Bids totaling $189,341 were accepted by the common council at its meeting last night for the construction of the addition to the John N. Bergstrom Art Center and Museum.

The addition, featuring an auditorium and gallery on the main floor and two meeting rooms and two class rooms in the lower level, will be erected entirely through private funds, without use of the tax rolls.

The general contract was awarded to P. G. Miron, Town of Menasha, $112,125; electrical contractor will be Langstad's Inc., Appleton, $31,281; plumbing, Hietpas Inc., Little Chute, $9,035. Two heating contractors were disqualified, the contract being awarded to Angermeyer Plumbing and Heating Co. Inc., Neenah, $36,900.

Traffic Control

In other action the council approved the proposal of the First National Bank to remove the traffic control box from the corner guard post at Wisconsin Avenue and Commercial Street to a light post approximately 10 feet south on Commercial Street. The police-fire phone will be moved to a location on Cecil Street. The downtown area will be serviced by addition of a walkie talkie.

The bank will absorb the entire cost of moving the equipment and pay half the cost of the walkie talkie. The cost to the bank will be approximately $1,000, the city will pay $530 toward the mobile phone with funds from the traffic budget.

and examining contents underneath. Spice said bits of fish scales and other drops of blood were found.

Spice said today it would not have been possible for the knife to fall from a pair of trousers into the lining of the chair. He said the knife is not typical of a knife which would normally be carried in trouser pockets.

A trip to Madison is planned in the near future to retrieve the knife, Spice said. The sheriff plans to question Marvin Kilsdonk, husband of the slain woman, on details concerning the knife. The knife is similar to other kitchen knives which were found in the home by authorities investigating the brutal murder.

Found by Tenants
The knife was found by tenants in the Black Creek farmhome. Spice said one tenant dropped coins in the chair and when seeking the coins, found the knife. The knife was immediately turned over to sheriff authorities.

Spice said Marvin Kilsdonk has not occupied the farm home since the murder and that it was rented out to an Appleton family in June. Many of the furnishings, including the bedroom chair, were left in the home.

Health Board Denies Action on Plant Smell

Louis Porath Protests Scolding Locks Odor In Appearance Before Appleton Aldermen

A citizen objecting to a smell from an Appleton plant was given one more chance to speak "in the interest of democracy" Wednesday night, but the city council denied further action on the matter.

The board of health at a special meeting Wednesday afternoon unanimously denied further action "since it has been demonstrated and proved that there is no mental health or public health hazard from the exhaust fumes at Scolding Locks Corp."

Louis Porath, 1615 W. Rogers St., had objected to the smell from the firm at 1520 W. Rogers St., and had circulated petitions.

At Wednesday night's council meeting, he charged the board and the council had not answered the charges in the petition. City officials have twice toured the plant—once with an Institute of Paper Chemistry chemist — and reported there was no health hazard.

'Reports Impressive'
"The reports are impressive," Porath said, "but they don't make the odors less noxious. They are offensive, disagreeable, and as such are in violation of city ordinances." He said his objections had not made claims the exhaust odor

Closing Statements in Reno Trial Of Oshkosh Man Expected Friday

Special to The Post-Crescent

RENO, Nev. — A Reno psychiatrist described Wednesday a "raw, emotional overwhelming" which he said caused Douglas A. Dahlke to shoot his wife Gloria.

Dahlke, 27, an Army dental technician, is accused of shooting his 27-year-old wife 10 times in the head, transporting her body to Oshkosh and burying it in the basement of his step-father's home.

Dr. Raymond Brown said: "It is ironic that here is a man who denied the reality and importance of emotions and then the emotions took over."

He added he does not feel Dahlke has a mental illness.

Examined 3 Times

Dr. Brown said he examined Dahlke three times and studied other facets of the defendant's

Firemen Don't Go to Blaze When Call Comes To Appleton Station

Appleton firemen today came to the aid of an Appleton man whose new job required he wear no rings on his fingers.

The man told firemen at the main fire station he had been wearing a ring for several years and today, before he reported to work, he could not remove the ring.

Firemen used a steel clipper and a pair of pliers to snap the ring and twist it from the finger. The man thanked the firemen for their help and went on to his job.

Drop Case Against Neenah Woman

OSHKOSH — A charge of contributing to the delinquency of two 12-year-old girls against Shirley Lorentz, 23, 401 Fifth St., Neenah, was dismissed today by Winnebago County Judge James Sitter. Judge Sitter said he could find in the evidence no criminal violation although the defendant should have notified authorities that she had taken two runaway girls into her home.

He said evidence indicated the girls had run away several times earlier and were likely to do so again. The two girls were the subject of a search after they had run away from home late in April.

Long Shots Fail To Impress GOP State Delegates

Stassen, Mrs. Smith Showed No Interest, Feeling Was Mutual

Post-Crescent Convention Bureau
SAN FRANCISCO — The long shot character of some of the presidential "candidates" here this week was illustrated by the indifference of the Wisconsin delegation toward such aspirants as Sen. Margaret Chase Smith and Harold Stassen. Wisconsin delegates showed not the slightest interest in seeing them, and the candidates responded in kind.
 Mrs. Smith's declared aspiration was plainly to propagandize the cause of women in politics. Stassen's role here brought very little response except wry amusement, even among some of the leading Wisconsin politicians who championed his presidential dreams back in the 1940s when he was Minnesota governor.

Convention and party brass here have valuable privileges, including autos and drivers to help them move about the crowded city. Such a car was assigned to National Committeeman Robert L. Pierce of Wisconsin and his wife. But Mrs. Pierce was mildly annoyed one morning to find the car missing—until the hotel doorman apologetically explained that he had temporarily loaned it to Dwight Eisenhower.

Mrs. Pierce and her guests shared a front row convention hall box with Gov. and Mrs. Rockefeller of New York.

A Wisconsin reporter here is tempted to invite Wisconsin politicians to note the superbly complete press arrangements—as a guide to their own press relations at home.

Nothing, literally nothing, is spared to make the reporter's job of communicating news of the convention easier. Such impediments as remain relate to the immense size of the rally and the enormous crowds—a problem that will inevitably become more difficult in the future.

Jasper Lectures

Delegate Claude Jasper of Wisconsin as a member of the convention rules committee lectured other committee members briefly on some elements of practical politics during the debate on a proposal to tighten up convention rules forbidding discrimination on delegate qualifications on the basis of race or religion or associated factors. Jasper noted that ticket-making methods that take into account ethnic and religious composition of the electorate have been accepted in most states for decades. Wisconsin is among them, he said, speculating that for his own selection as a Wisconsin delegate may be attributed to the fact that he is German by national descent, and Catholic by religious affiliation. Jasper might have mentioned also that he earned his spurs as a politician by long service in the party including a recent term as state party chairman.

Among the energetic volunteer assistants who worked long hours in the Wisconsin delegation office this week was Wilder Crane, a former member of the Wisconsin legislature from Chippewa County who has taught at various colleges around the country in recent years and now is a member of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin—Milwaukee as a professor of political science.

Considering the distances and the costs involved, the number of Wisconsin visitors at the convention is unusually high. A total of 400 would be conservative.

Several Wisconsin congressmen here, including Chairman John W. Byrnes of the state delegation, are personal acquaintances of Gov. Scranton through his service in the House of Representatives a few years ago. But Scranton served only a single term in the big house, and no Wisconsin representative apparently knew him well during that period.

Laird Denies Maneuvering

Says Reading of Platform Standard Program Procedure

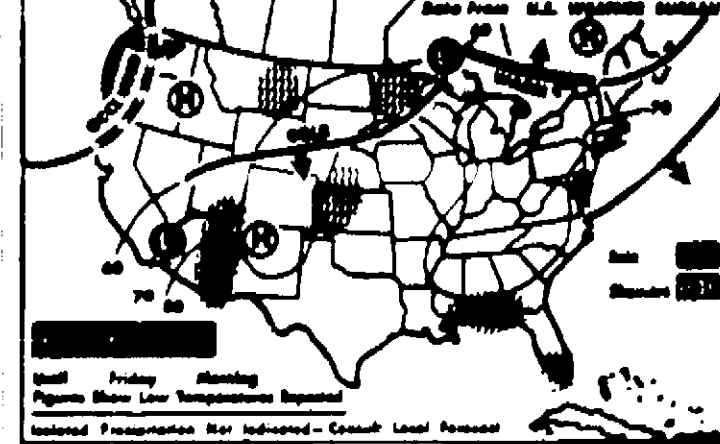

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Was the tedious reading of the Republican platform document at the national party convention a skillful filibuster intended to shut out the amendment fight late in the evening from the view of the national television audience?

The man who ought to know, because he was in charge, says flatly that it was not. He has a persuasive case for his assertion.

Rep. Melvin R. Laird, Marshfield, controlled the platform part of the proceeding, says the reading of the platform is standard procedure, that under the rules for this rally anybody who wanted to dispense with the reading could have made such a motion, that no one did so, and that on the sole occasion in recent history when the platform was not read, there was widespread denunciation of the fact. That was in 1960, when Laird was also in charge as co-chairman of the platform committee, and made the motion to skip the reading in order to expedite the convention business. Laird told critics that the reading of the 12,000 word paper was a part of the convention plan and that he had designated the readers before the convention opened.

"I didn't want to be in the position of appearing to railroad the convention," said the Wisconsin congressman who was the target of interrogators representing eastern newspapers and other media. Because of the time difference, the long reading of the platform put the debates about amendments on the screens of New York and the eastern seaboard long past midnight.

Teamster President Denies Conspiring To Divert Funds
The chunky union leader took the witness stand Wednesday and denied that he fraudulently arranged more than $20 million in real estate loans from the union's pension fund. He said he never conspired with his six codefendants to divert $1 million of the fund to his and his associates' pockets.

Describes Fund
The 51-year-old labor leader gave the packed U.S. District courtroom description of the fund from its inception in 1955. Before Hoffa's testimony another defendant, Zachary A. Strate Jr., testified that the government coerced a witness to give false testimony in the trial.

Earlier Testimony
Rose, of New Orleans, testified previously as a government witness that Strate paid kickbacks of $1,650,000 to another defendant, Benjamin Dranow, for loans received from the pension fund.

Strate said, "Rose came to me in June 1961 (when the government was investigating the pension fund) and said the government had found out he had put $175,000 in a safe deposit box."

"Rose said he was in trouble for possible income tax violations and was going to cooperate with the government in its investigation of Hoffa and the pension fund to get off the hook," Strate said.

The government charges that Hoffa devised the scheme to defraud the pension fund in order to extricate himself from a failing Florida homes development in which he was financially involved.

Goldwater to Fight 'Clean, Conservative Campaign'

Miller to Be Given 2nd Place

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona Wednesday night pledged a vigorous but clean campaign against President Johnson in November.

Goldwater said he would campaign "on the issues solely" and that he would not engage in "a personal attack."

He thanked his campaign workers and said he "can't find words to express the feeling that is in my heart. No greater honor can come to any Republican."

Wife Interrupts
Asked if he had phoned Rep. William Miller to ask him to accept the vice presidential nomination, Goldwater said "no" but added he is "favorably inclined" toward the New York congressman for the second spot on the ticket.

"I know somewhat how he felt," Goldwater said of Gov. William W. Scranton and commended the Pennsylvanian for his speech to the convention.

Why is he running for president?

"The Republican cause needs a chance and the conservative cause needs a chance" to be presented to the voters, he said.

At this point the senator was interrupted by his wife, whom he greeted with "Hi, honey," and embraced her. "You didn't cry too much tonight," he said.

Asked if he thought he could beat Johnson, Goldwater said: "I wouldn't be in the campaign if I didn't think I could win."

Goldwater said he is having a meeting of all 50 state governors this morning, and will meet with the national committee Thursday to confer on steps to unify the party.

Message to Scranton
New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, former rival for the GOP presidential nomination, was the first visitor to pay a call on the Arizona senator after his victory.

Gov. Scranton was the next caller. Goldwater also sent a telegram to Scranton immediately after the convention decision, expressing appreciation for Scranton's unity plea to the delegates and urging that they work together for victory over the Democrats in the fall elections.

When he was watching the balloting from his hotel suite he switched on a second set just as

Politicians See Groundswell In Wisconsin for Goldwater

Strong Support Other Than Party Regulars Noted for Arizonan

BY JAMES BARRETT
The Arizonan senator's victory in the Wisconsin primary was a surprise to many party regulars, who noted a strong groundswell of support for Goldwater among voters in the state.

"I think it's obvious that the voters in Wisconsin have developed a strong feeling for Goldwater," said a local Republican leader. "He represents the conservative values that many of us feel are being lost in the current political climate."

The senator's victory in Wisconsin was a significant boost to his campaign. It showed that he had a strong base of support in a key swing state. Many party regulars were surprised by the result, as they had expected a more traditional GOP candidate to win.

Arizona Senator Wins Nomination 23 Minutes After Roll Call Starts

BY JACK BELL
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Arizona senator had made his views popular with the 1,300 delegates as their presidential nominee. The count showed, Goldwater and he vows to carry "the conservative cause" to the American voters in November.

The 55-year-old grandson of a Jewish peddler who emigrated to California from London ground moderate Republicans under his steamroller as he pushed to a first-ballot victory Wednesday night.

Decision in 23 Minutes
Twenty-three minutes after the call of the states began, Goldwater became the nominee when South Carolina cast its 16 total needed to nominate.

By a motion of Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, his leading opponent, the nomination was made officially unanimous—but it wasn't quite.

In the midst of the confusion, Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, the convention chairman, told a reporter that he had been informed Goldwater had called Rep. William E. Miller of New York, the GOP national chairman, had offered him the vice presidential nomination, and that Miller had accepted.

"Favorably Inclined"
But Goldwater and Miller both appeared on television later to say that it wasn't quite as buttoned up as Morton had said it was.

Goldwater said he hadn't promised Miller to ask him to accept second place on the ticket, as had been reported. But he added that he is "favorably inclined" toward the upstate New York representative.

Miller, also appearing on television, said he thinks that after a meeting of Goldwater with state chairmen today some definitive announcement on the vice presidential nomination—which he said he would accept—would be forthcoming. The vice presidential nominee will be formally elected at tonight's closing session.

Known as Fighter
Miller, 44 and a Roman Catholic, would be calculated to bring to the ticket a skilled campaigner noted for his rough and tumble political battling. Goldwater has designated him as "a gut fighter."

The new GOP presidential nominee is an Episcopalian. He still holds an interest in swank retail clothing stores in Arizona.

The senator demonstrated iron control of the party and the convention in contrast to four years ago when, in withdrawing his name from consideration for the nomination, he urged conservatives not to desert the GOP.

This time, it was the party's moderates and liberals who had to march into the glaring lights on the podium to urge their supporters not to take a walk. The pendulum had swung to the right in those four years.

The single roll call, pursued to the end in the overcrowded Cow Palace, showed the overwhelming manner in which the Arizona senator had made his views popular with the 1,300 delegates as their presidential nominee. The count showed, Goldwater and he vows to carry "the conservative cause" to the American voters in November.

At this point a chipper and smiling Scranton appeared dramatically to walk the long length of the platform to the rostrum where, framed in the lights and in the eye of the television cameras, he moved to make Goldwater's nomination unanimous. The hall burst at the seams with the thunder of approval.

Appeals for Unity
Recalling that four years previously Goldwater had stood where he was, Scranton, his face solemn for the moment, told the delegates that the time

Press Abroad Worries Over Nomination

Sees Reaction in U. S. And Expresses Fears For World's Peace
LONDON (AP)—The nomination of Sen. Barry Goldwater aroused editorial apprehension in Britain and most of Europe today.

Government officials refrained from public comment, but newspapers in general described the choice of the Arizona senator as a victory for the forces of reaction and a threat to world peace.

Bitterest of all, predictably, was the Communist press. Pravda, the organ of the Soviet Communist party, said Goldwater was running on the "most reactionary, bellicose and adventurist pre-election platform in American history."

The Moscow paper Sovetskaya Rossiya declared that Goldwater was backed by a coalition "consisting of the most aggressive capitalist groups, racist, trade union opponents, crusaders of anti-communism and Ku Klux Klanners."

There were hard words for the GOP standard-bearer from anti-Communist journals of Western Europe as well. Stockholm's Liberal Expressen, the biggest daily in Scandinavia, described the nomination as "a catastrophe for the Republicans, a threat against the United States, a danger to the world."

Copenhagen's Liberal Ekstra-bladet asserted: "Blackest Reaction" "The blackest reaction won the battle in the Cow Palace. The progressive forces that have ruled in the Republican party since 1940 were trampled down under hooves this morning."

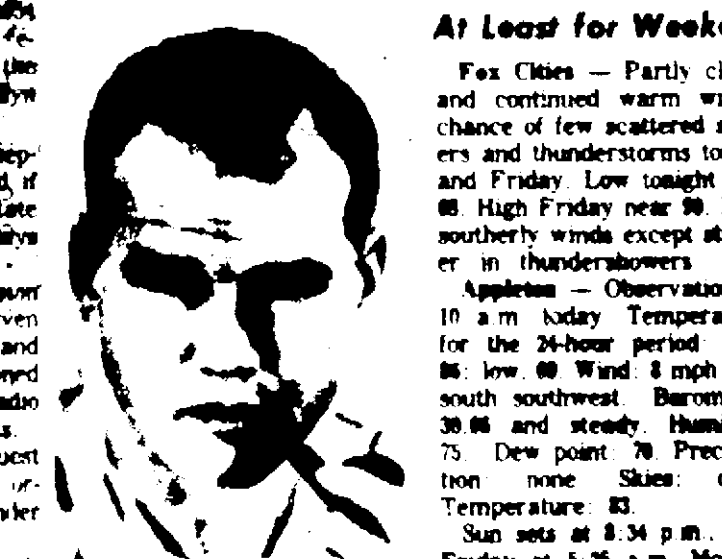

Said Oslo's Liberal Dagbladet: "Those who once made up the 'Eisenhower wing' within the Republican party have suffered a catastrophic defeat, which also will turn out to be a catastrophe for the party itself. With Goldwater as its political general it will meet its Waterloo in November."

Federal Judge Orders Release of Sam Sheppard From Ohio Prison

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, the "Doc for Sam" of one of the nation's most publicized murder cases, was expected to leave Ohio Penitentiary today on strength of a temporary freedom before a trial 10 years ago, said he will ask for a stay of execution to prevent Sheppard's release.

U.S. Dist. Judge Carl A. Weinman in Dayton ruled Wednesday that the 46-year-old Rev. V. J. large suburbanite who denied his constitutional rights in his plea trial in Cleveland, the field of the case was a revival of the one-time aide to the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Ga. A spiritual had been declared on the same charges April 19.

The jury of 11 men and a woman also acquitted Murray E. Gottesman, a codefendant who was charged with perjury.

The jury, who reached the case Wednesday and deliberated nine hours.

Judge Weinman said Sheppard's custody in "solid" and if Cuyahoga County or the state were to detain him 90 days the release would be denied.

Weinman's 10-page decision denounced the coverage given the case by three Cleveland newspapers and also mentioned three nationally known radio commentators and columnists.

The judge, acting on a request for a writ of habeas corpus, ordered Sheppard's release under $10,000 bond.

Seymour School Budget Placed at Over $1.3 Million

Final Okay Expected July 27;
Expense List Rises $150,000

SEYMOUR — Final approval of a $1,308,486 budget for the Seymour Community Schools is expected at the annual meeting July 27.

Expenses are $150,000 more than last year. Accounting for the jump are increases in instructional costs and debt service for short-term loans.

Despite the increase, the budget anticipates a tax rate of $14.90 per $1,000, the same as last year's rate. The 1963-64 levy was $543,944, but $564,067 is being asked for the 1964-65 budget.

State equalized valuation of the school district has increased about $700,000 to $36,900,300.

Largest income will come from state aids estimated at $315,000. The district received $305,671 last year. County aid will drop slightly because the district closed three one-room rural schools and discontinued services of three elementary teachers.

Continued enrollment growth is reflected in federal aid gains for tuition and hot lunch and milk programs, transportation aids from federal, state and county sources will increase because the number of students being transported is up due to the closing of rural schools.

Increased enrollment also will bring greater costs. Total general control will jump from $22,563 to $25,856. Instruction costs will increase about $45,000 to $617,496.

Drop in Supply Costs

Supplies and other expenses of instruction last year cost $44,987 but will drop to $34,982 for the new term. Operation costs are up about $7,000 to $79,401 for 1964-65. Maintenance expenses also will rise $7,000 to $24,050. Operation costs will depend partly upon winter weather conditions which determines fuel needs. Auxiliary services are up from $87,466 to $73,443.

Other disbursements, which include insurance and interest on short term loans, will show a slight drop from actual expenses of the 1963-64 term. These expenses are budgeted for $17,475, a drop of about $1,300.

Total transportation costs for next year are estimated at $88,529 as compared to $75,314 spent this year. Transportation contracts, the largest single item, are budgeted at $73,580, almost $9,000 higher than the current term.

Instructional Equipment

Instructional equipment will cost $23,947, $11,000 over last year. Capital outlay, which includes the instructional costs, will increase from $18,981 to $42,794. Debt service, including $150,000 for short-term loans, will boost that department from $173,253 to $262,591.

The district's borrowing limit is $2,790,900. Current borrowing amounts to 24.4 per cent of that limit. The state allows 17 mills to be used for current operation exclusive of capital outlay and debt service.

The Seymour district allows just under 15 mills for its entire operation. About three mills of the total is used for debt retirement. The remainder is used for current operations.

Anticipated balance of $166,349 is expected. This includes a $15,000 high school site improvement fund for physical education facilities.

The district finished the current year with $210,544 balance. $108,000 of which is allocated for a debt retirement payment due September. An additional $108,000 out of the $166,349 balance will be paid for debt retirement in September, 1965.

One of the First Animals to be unloaded at the county fairgrounds at Seymour this morning was led down the ramp by La Vern Wehrman, route 1, Black Creek. The fair opened this morning. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Budget For Brillion Schools Is $402,866

District Tax Levy to Increase
By About $5,000, According to Preliminary Expense List

BRILLION — A proposed and repair of the roof and water budget of $402,866 for the 1964-65 school year was discussed at School Board meeting Monday evening at the Brillion High School gymnasium.

The proposed budget is based on an equalized valuation of $30,475,500, up $500,200 over last year's $19,867,300. The mill levy for the district was proposed at $15, down slightly from last year's $15.01. The tax levy needed is $307,132 compared to $301,926 last year. A broader tax base is responsible for the lower rate even though the levy is higher.

This is the second year the board of education has conducted the preliminary hearing. Purpose of such a meeting is to familiarize district voters with the budget for the coming school year. The annual school meeting will be at 8 p.m. Monday, July 27 in the gym.

Salaries Increased

The general control section of disbursements is up $834 from last year to $23,450. A portion is based on an increase of $300 for clerical workers' salaries and travel expenses for Supt. Gaylord Unbehauen. The latter category is about $400 higher, giving Unbehauen an opportunity to travel next year in lieu of an increase in salary.

In the instruction category, up $4,567 from last year, a $4,114 increase is reflected in pay bills for high school teachers $16,521 to $18,300, with the transportation category up $1,200. Also included are new mathematics textbooks needed in switching to a new teaching concept. This represents an increase of $1,183 for high school textbooks and $416 for grade school texts. Down are expenditures for supplies and library.

The operation category is increased from $24,824 last year to $26,220. The difference of $2,397 is based on a $1,500 increase in budgeted fuel costs to $6,000 for the coming year and a $500 increase in salaries for operation.

Maintenance Costs

Maintenance costs will drop from $22,575 to $20,000 due to decreases in repairs and replacement of instructional equipment and service systems. Only salaries, up from $5,073 to $5,500 and repair and replacement of furniture and general equipment, up from $1,965 to $3,900 show increases. The last 75 persons from Oshkosh Dale, California includes new desks in the Forest Junction school, new desks in the Brillion school, union here next year.

Four Democrats Set To Oppose Incumbents In County Elections

Top Outagamie Race Expected To be for Sheriff's Position

Four Democratic candidates have filed papers to oppose incumbent Republican Donald Heinritz for the post two years. Broehm was employed as a deputy clerk in the sheriff's courthouse, and one Democrat is opposing office-seeker Dominic Peeters for the expected vacant post of register of deeds.

Incumbent Stephan Peeters is not seeking re-election.

Primary races will be held in the Second and Third districts for Assembly posts. In the Second District, primary races will be held to select Republican candidates. Two Republicans have filed for the Third District seat and the GOP candidate will also be selected by a primary ballot.

The only county posts which will be uncontested are those held by Coroner Bernard H. Kemps, and Frank M. Charlesworth Jr., surveyor.

George Greisch, Appleton attorney, failed to file his nomination papers by the 5 p.m. deadline Tuesday. He had planned to seek the Third District assembly seat. Greisch said today he had changed his mind about seeking the post. He is a county board supervisor.

Voluntary Controls Top GOP's Farm Platform

Position Provides Sharp Contrast With Democratic Program of Setting Quotas

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

SAN FRANCISCO — The Republican appeal to farmers as contained in the new party platform follows the lines of voluntary commodity control programs as advocated by the leading Wisconsin politicians of Wisconsin.

For Wisconsin milk and meat producers, the GOP position will provide a sharp contrast with Democratic preferences for government production and marketing quotas such as have been offered by the national Democratic Party and leading Wisconsin Democrats in recent years.

Wilbur Runk who will be the Republican nominee for U.S. Senator in Wisconsin without opposition in the fall said the party platform squares with his own views and especially the pledge to support withdrawal of surplus crop lands from production.

In Wisconsin, he said, we could withdraw up to a quarter of our agricultural acres for the long-range benefit of farming.

Indirect Administration

In its indictment of the national administration the Republican platform complains about the currently low parity ratio in the farm price support program and the authorization of beef imports at a time of cattle price slumps, a sensitive issue in Wisconsin farm districts which are increasingly involved in beef production.

Full endorsement of farm co-operatives and especially rural electric co-operatives is compulsory doctrine for the Republican campaigning in the rural districts of Wisconsin.

The platform conforms to those necessities as the Wisconsin politicians here perceived.

In its essential respects, the farm plank echoes the record and attitude of its chief architect, Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R.

Psychiatrist Says Shooting Was Motivated by Emotions

Closing Statements in Reno Trial Of Oshkosh Man Expected Friday

RENO, Nev. — A Reno psychiatrist described Wednesday a "raw, emotional overwhelming" which he said caused Douglas A. Dahlke to shoot his wife Gloria.

Dahlke, 27, an Army dental technician, is accused of shooting his 27-year-old wife 10 times in the head, transporting her body to Oshkosh and burying it in the basement of his step-father's home.

Dr. Raymond Brown said, "It is ironic that here is a man who denied the reality and importance of emotions and then the emotions took over."

He added he does not feel Dahlke has a mental illness.

Examined 3 Times

Dr. Brown said he examined Dahlke three times and studied other facets of the defendant's personality using a tape-recorded interview made while Dahlke was under hypnosis.

The defense attempted to have the one-hour tape played in the Washoe (County) District court. However, Judge John Gabrielli sustained prosecution objection, saying Dr. Brown had testified as to his evaluation of the interview.

"There was a considerable difference in Dahlke Oct. 12 (the day of the shooting)," the doctor said.

He added that Dahlke's emotions "overwhelmed" him, took control of his body and that the shooting was almost a "reflex" response. He was acting automatically," he said.

The emotions bypassed rational thought and Dahlke was in no condition to be rational and she knew right from wrong, the psychiatrist said.

Under Hypnosis

Dr. Brown said Dahlke has stood above average intelligence and added he believes the Oct. 12 shooting was the first time in Dahlke's life that such an outburst of emotion took place.

Dr. M. E. Sonderegger, a Reno specialist in obstetrics and medical hypnosis, testified he had placed Dahlke under hypnosis for interviews. He added the defendant had been a good subject for examination under hypnosis, which the doctor described as a state of "altered awareness" in which persons are able to recollect more clearly.

Dahlke took the stand Wednesday in his own defense and told of meeting his wife just after he turned 15. He said he and she were assigned seats across from each other in a classroom, and married more than four years later.

Stationed in California

Dahlke told of being stationed in California with the U.S. Air Force where their son Eric was born. He told of moving to Milwaukee after his Air Force service and leaving college after one year of chemistry studies, working for a short time and then entering the Army.

Dahlke said he committed his wife to a mental institution after she had undergone a brief period of voluntary treatment.

He told of learning while in Oklahoma that his wife was seen with other men in Oshkosh. He said they reconciled later and that she joined him in Oklahoma.

Dahlke told of his parents buying a house trailer for him and his wife, saying he repaid his mother on a monthly basis.

Sent to Germany

He said he was sent to Germany and that plans for his family to join him never were completed. He said Gloria sold his car and house trailer and traveled, not telling him her address.

The defendant said there was a six-month period when he didn't hear from her.

The defendant said Mrs. Dahlke refused to send him a coat and good photo of Eric as he had requested and that he was ridiculed in Germany because of his lack of mail.

Sought Money

Dahlke said that shortly before he was to return to the United States the Red Cross told him his wife had asked for shooting money. He said he refused to send money without having an address.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Aral thought and Dahlke was in no condition to be rational and she knew right from wrong, the psychiatrist said.

Under Hypnosis

Dr. Brown said Dahlke has stood above average intelligence and added he believes the Oct. 12 shooting was the first time in Dahlke's life that such an outburst of emotion took place.

Brillion Sets Preliminary School Budget

Forest Junction and Brillion schools, plus a $4,111 increase for instructional equipment for the high school. This includes $2,000 for a regulation-size wrestling mat, maps, new physics equipment and calculators. Also up is site improvement, from $1,850 to $2,440 for athletic field work.

Debt service and community services remain approximately the same as last year.

Receipts Down

Total receipts are expected to be down $2,074 from last year's $400,637 to $398,563. Part of this is reflected in reduced payments from tuition students from $1,030 to $400 as students graduate who were affected by redistricting.

Other categories budgeted lower are sales of property, from $1,300 to $1,000; state aid, $31,918 to $30,651; federal aid for lunches, from $7,500 to $6,900, and tuition from other districts, from $6,614 to $1,725. Increased revenues will come from rental property and other minor categories.

Cash on hand for the 1964-65 year is $37,755, compared to $23,038 for the 1963-64 year.

Other items discussed at the meeting were the advisability of charging for admission to wrestling matches and the possibility of a new building program in the next few years.

The most practical answer to the need for more space, it was pointed out, would be a high consolidated with one or more of the schools in the area.

John Haun, clerk of the board of education, said absentee ballots for voting for school board members are available from him. Voting will be on the day of the school meeting.

Hazen Denies He Helped Brick

Howard Hazen, an aide on the staff of Gov. John Reynolds, denied today that he helped Wilbert Brick, Black Creek, a Democratic Party candidate for the Third Assembly District seat, circulate nomination papers.

Hazen made the statement in rebuttal to a charge Wednesday by Harve Wolfe, Outagamie County Republican chairman, that an employee of Reynolds' staff "using a state of Wisconsin car, drove Brick around in an attempt to get his papers filled out."

Hazen said today "I have been a friend of Brick for years, but I never discussed his candidacy with him. This whole matter is a complete fabrication by Wolfe. I'm making a formal charge this is just another attempt by the Post-Crescent to smear me."

The Republican Candidate

Barry Goldwater's nomination as the Republican candidate for President of the United States is a very real personal triumph for the Arizona senator. Goldwater did not back into the nomination or take it because it was not sought by anyone else. It was an uphill struggle against what was generally considered to be the leadership of the Republican party; against the so-called "mainstream" of party thought; against a major segment of the American press; and against spurious and shallow opinions of the senator and what he stood for as well as sincere opposition to his point of view.

What started out as a strong drive by a dedicated and enthusiastic but relatively small group of Goldwater supporters mushroomed, state by state, into complete control of the delegates to the convention. It was almost unnoticed by a lot of Republicans until late in June. Publicity centered on the state primaries and on the various polls which indicated—and continue to indicate—that Goldwater's chances against Scranton, Lodge and Rockefeller as well as President Johnson, were slim. But the polls were notoriously wrong in every primary. Whether they are wrong about the November election remains to be seen.

As Senator Goldwater has pointed out, the delegates, after all, were chosen in general by the Republican voters—or at least by those Republicans who get more involved in party politics than merely casting a ballot at major elections. But there was more than enthusiasm for Senator Goldwater or even for a more conservative point of view than has dominated the Republican party for the last 12 years. The Republican party is not as widely split in opinion as is the Democratic party; but many local leaders in the Midwest and West had nurtured resentment against the so-called Eastern liberal "establishment" which they argued had taken away the party from the people in 1962. In part the swing to Goldwater reflected this long standing grudge.

The more liberal Republicans also had listened too long to the Lippmanns and the Alsops and the others who insisted that it could not happen that Goldwater was too conservative, that the majority of Republicans would not support him. We have to wait until November to find out how many Americans favor the more conservative line; but it is obvious from the Republican convention that the number is higher than the liberals estimated.

Goldwater's victory was in many ways similar to that of John F. Kennedy four years ago. He fought against odds of prejudice unrelated to sound differences of opinion. He actively and sincerely sought the nomination and did not sit back waiting to be drafted. Goldwater did not have the financial resources of the Kennedy family pocketbook, but he too was shrugged off for a variety of reasons as an "impossible" candidate.

Whether or not we are in complete agreement with Senator Goldwater's philosophy, we believe he deserves the nomination. And we shall be highly interested in the weeks ahead to follow his campaign, no longer for the nomination, but for the presidency. For that, too, will be an uphill fight and Senator Goldwater is conditioned for such battles.

Who Is an Extremist?

The average viewer must have been confused by the debate at the Republican convention over the issue of extremism. Such a viewer must have wondered why such an issue was accorded so much importance.

The issue was raised by the Scranton coalition of liberals in a dying effort to find some means of derailing the Goldwater bandwagon. As we have remarked before, it seems an incongruous matter over which to draw the line between the conservative and liberal philosophy.

It placed the liberals in the position of attacking freedom of expression in this country. It placed the liberals in the same relative philosophical category as the extremist groups themselves who often rant against freedom of expression. It was a completely untenable position.

The issue was considerably complicated when Governor Hatfield in his keynote address included Communists along with the Ku Klux Klan and the John Birch Society in his denunciation. When the resolution to amend the platform was introduced by Governor Rockefeller, he followed Hatfield's lead. There are significant differences between the Communist Party, which openly advocates the overthrow of our government, and right-wing groups. The latter in their ignorance may threaten some American freedoms, but they are American.

It is unfortunate when the question of whether a candidate is for or against an extremist group is introduced into politics. We have had such instances here in Wisconsin. In the campaign two years ago Phil Kuehn was accused of John Birch support. We will undoubtedly have them again in this campaign.

The problem is how to identify an extremist. We can deplore certain positions taken by the John Birch Society. But because an individual has sent in his dues to headquarters does this make him responsible for every policy statement the organization has made?

This leads to the question whether a candidate must repudiate support by the John Birch Society or whether he must say he doesn't want any member of the society to vote for him. And if he doesn't want any vote from a member of the John Birch Society, what about members of many other societies?

Obviously this can lead to a ridiculous conclusion.

The General in San Francisco

There has been a considerable amount of criticism of the role played in the Republican nomination of a candidate for the Presidency by former President Dwight Eisenhower. His firm refusal to back any one candidate and his acceptance of the role as consultant to a television network have both come under fire. But it should be noted that the major critics of the first were not followers of Sen. Barry Goldwater and the critics of the second in general had something to do with the other networks.

Eisenhower has explained that he encouraged all comers to get into the fray so as to have a wide open "dialogue" on policies and platforms of the Republican party as well as the abilities and philosophies of the various aspirants. Eisenhower thought that this could contribute both to a clarification of what the party stood for and encourage the appeal of the party to a lot of independent American voters who often complain that they see little difference between Democratic and Republican ideals. We must suspect also that Eisenhower would have thought such a dialogue would have revealed weaknesses in Goldwater's position or perhaps might have forced Goldwater to take a less extreme view on some matters.

The General concedes that the plan did not work out that way or at least not to the extent that he had hoped. Senator Goldwater sewed up delegates early without a great deal of opposition in many states. There was no major confrontation of the opposing points of view except possibly in New Hampshire. By the time the California primary rolled around, allegiances were emotional rather than logical. But this state of affairs cannot be blamed upon General Eisenhower.

The more liberal wing of the party relied upon Governor Rockefeller because he quits frankly was the only leading candidate willing to put in the time and effort. Eisenhower has explained that he did encourage Governor Scranton not to wait for a draft but certainly Scranton's hesitation until well after the eleventh hour cannot be blamed upon Eisenhower. The so-called liberal wing was handicapped by the weaknesses of its major aspirants—Rockefeller's divorce and re-marriage, Lodge's enemies among party regulars and his age, Scranton's reluctance. It was also handicapped by its apparent belief that Goldwater could not be nominated and that anyway the Republicans couldn't win in November.

If General Eisenhower had come out firmly ten months ago for a candidate other than Senator Goldwater, it is likely that there would have been a wide open split in the party which might have influenced middle of the road delegates away from Goldwater. But this is speculation. Had Eisenhower backed Scranton or anyone else on the liberal side more recently, it probably would have made little if any difference at San Francisco.

There seems to be no good reason why a former president of the United States should not be employed by a television network any more than that he should not write a book or a series of articles for the newspapers as did Harry Truman. Eisenhower's remarks at San Francisco contributed interesting background information for the viewers even though they provided no scoops.

Of more concern to us, however, is the idea that a former president somehow ought to name the party's candidate in future races. The now growing tradition that a presidential candidate should have the undisputed right to name his running mate—and thereby perhaps a future president of the United States—is inconsistent with our insistence upon a government chosen by the will of the people. So, too, is the idea that a former president's whim should be followed. Behind-the-scenes efforts most assuredly have been made—by Harry Truman in his desire to sidetrack the nomination of John Kennedy and perhaps by Eisenhower in his brother's and son's backing of Scranton. But a former president should have no more authority to dictate successors or terms than any other member of a political party.

Inside Washington

Single Most Important Man Behind Goldwater Is Southerner

BY ROBERT S. ALLEN AND PAUL SCOTT

SAN FRANCISCO—The single most influential delegate at the Republican National Convention is a six-foot-two, New York-born South Carolinian who is totally unknown to the public, is aptly nicknamed "Big Red," rules an extensive textile empire and is worth more than $100 million.

This unique political power is Roger Milliken, 48. Married, has five children, lives in Spartanburg, S.C., calls Yale his alma mater, and is a dedicated friend, supporter and major financial backer of Senator Barry Goldwater from way back — starting in 1959 when they first met after a speech by the Arizona in Greenville, S.C.

To Milliken the views, concepts and precepts of Goldwater were true gospel and time has intensified this deeply held conviction. At the 1960 Republican convention, Milliken felt so strongly about his champion that he personally put up all the money for a blitz drive and huge rally to nominate him for vice president, despite Nixon's avowed preference for Henry Cabot Lodge as running mate.

Only Goldwater's insistence on withdrawing in the interest of harmony averted an explosive, headline-making clash.

This convention it's different, but one thing is the same. This time it is all Goldwater and, as four years ago, the unknown but all-powerful Milliken is in the inner center of the all-pervasive and irresistible Goldwater organization, quietly but firmly supervising and directing just about everything that it does.

Milliken has a key voice in every major decision and move, and most others, too.

Also, he more than carries his share of footing the bills. Among the politicos, Milliken is admirably known as, "A man who puts his money where his mouth is."

Insiders rate him as Goldwater's most consistent and principal financial supporter.

HOW THEY FUNCTION — The two men are in constant touch through an elaborate communications network that Milliken established and paid for.

Operating from a downtown hotel through this network, Goldwater, all his numerous leaders and representatives in every delegation, plus many other individuals can be reached in minutes, or less.

A top assistant of Milliken in this vital activity is John Grenier, 33-year-old Birmingham, Ala., lawyer. Also filling key roles are Peter O'Donnell, Texas, founder of the original "Draft Goldwater Committee," and Wirt Yenger, Mississippi, head of the Southern Chairmen's Conference.

In addition to personally knowing all Goldwater leaders and contacts at the convention and being in constant touch with them, Milliken knows or has instantly available everything that is deemed necessary to be known about every one of the 279 Southern delegates—and many others from other sections.

This information covers pertinent personal, business and other "valuable" data.

As he does in directing his textile empire and other business interests, Milliken "pops in" unannounced at delegation headquarters, etc., for a personal check-up to make sure everything is proceeding as it should.

The South Carolinian was doing that in Goldwater's behalf long before the convention.

A member of the potent finance committee of the National Committee, Milliken used this inner position to repeatedly ward off efforts of Goldwater rivals to bring big party contributor pressure to bear on delegates to switch.

Graphically illustrative of this tense backstage maneuvering was Milliken's instant and decisive counter to the challenge of a Scranton supporter on the finance committee who boldly contended the $12.8 million "minimum" goal set for the election campaign could not be obtained if Goldwater were the nominee. "I'll guarantee this committee," retorted Milliken, "we can raise most, if not all, of that in the South alone."

That ended the discussion.

Another important score credited to Milliken is persuading New Jersey's Richard Sellers, treasurer of the National Committee, to swing over to Goldwater despite strenuous appeals by big financial supporters of Scranton to back him. Sellers' timely declaration for Goldwater is credited with undercutting a high-powered blitz to sweep

New Jersey's 40-member delegation into the Scranton column.

HEART OF DIXIE — Core of the Goldwater organization and immovable foundation of the Arizona's victorious race for the presidential nomination are the 279 delegates from the Southern states. Every one of these delegations is all white. There is not a Negro among them.

There are only 11 Negro delegates in the convention.

The Southern delegates are tightly organized and led by devoted Goldwater followers. The Southerners have their own headquarters meshed into the Goldwater organization and communications network. While separate, they function as a unit.

In charge of the Southern headquarters is John Grenier, the young Birmingham lawyer who is a top Milliken lieutenant. Working closely with Grenier are Texas' O'Donnell and Mississippi's Yenger. The Southern headquarters takes care of everything for the delegates and their wives — from providing satisfactory hotel accommodations to baby sitters, if that is wanted.

This is the first time in GOP history that the South has operated in this sledgehammer manner and with such strikingly resounding success.

In addition to Milliken's textile empire, he is also a director on numerous large corporations, among them Westinghouse Electric, First National City Bank of New York, Mercantile Stores Co., Arthur D. Little Co.

Milliken sees himself as representative of the new breed of "Goldwater Republican" that is coming into ascendancy in the party, particularly in the South.

"I look upon myself as one of the leaders of the new Republican Party that Senator Goldwater is building," Milliken recently told a business friend. "This new Republican party is a young party, especially in the South. We attracted some 15,000 young people, many of them just out of college, to a state convention in Texas."

"It was the largest in the history of the South. The leaders of this new Republican Party are young, in their 30s and 40s. With Goldwater as their standard bearer, they are going to bring the two-party system to the South and win a national election in doing so."

In addition to masterminding, and heavily financing Goldwater's nomination success, Milliken is waging a court battle that is making little known but far reaching labor history.

A U.S. circuit court has upheld his contention that a plant owner has the right to "go out of business."

Milliken closed one of his textile mills after it had become involved in a bitter labor dispute. Rather than bow to the union, Milliken shut down the factory. His right to do so has been upheld in the federal district and circuit courts, and the precedent-setting case is headed for the Supreme Court.

State Republican Party Organizing Intensively For Election Campaign

BY TALBOT PETERSON

MADISON—As the race is about to start in the 1964 political "Sweepstakes," a review of the Republican Party's strength seems in order.

For a number of years the organizational side of the party has been stressed. Today the Republican Party is better organized in more counties than at any time in history. The major goals of the county organizations have remained the same since the days of Lincoln. Basically it is to locate Republicans in a community and get them to the polls on election day. This can be accomplished only by door-to-door effort on the part of a large number of people.

We know today that we have about 50,000 card-carrying members in our 72 counties. Our goal is to have 80,000 by this fall. It is not unrealistic to say that we will need, and use, twice that number in a massive grass roots effort this year.

A series of area workshop meetings will be conducted throughout the state to improve county leaders of the importance of voter registration, block-by-block survey work, and the Neighbor-to-Neighbor fund raising drive, which was so successful in its trial stage last year.

FINANCES

Unlike the days of Lincoln, a new ingredient has been added to modern politics, the need for broad based participation in financial support of the Republican Party. The cost of TV and other modern campaign developments has raised the cost of a successful campaign to levels never dreamed of when Lincoln was campaigning. Despite a popular misconception, the Republican Party of Wisconsin is not "loaded" with money. While the situation is improving due to a well-organized finance committee, we still have a long way to go.

We were fortunate this year to avoid a costly presidential primary and a race for our state-wide offices. While the unity that resulted is important, of equal importance is the money saved by this unity.

Milwaukee County has and will receive a great deal of attention during the campaign. When it is realized that about 30 per cent of the state's voters live in Milwaukee County, its importance can't be minimized. The Republican National Headquarters has sent a team of specialists into Milwaukee to help organize the effort there. Republicans receive about 41 per cent of the vote in Milwaukee, and if our efforts can bring the percentage up a few points, we will be assured of victory in November.

State-wide committees have been appointed to aid in special fields. They include a Republican Farm Committee, Veterans Committee, Nationalities Committee, County Fair Committee, Congressional Campaign Committee, Senior Citizens Committee, and a campaign committee to aid in election of Republican assemblymen and state senators.

UNIFIED EFFORT

In addition, the committees of Knowles, Renk, and Olson and our constitutional officers are all working together and with the party's headquarters. A unified campaign will result.

An attempt to improve communications has been started. Five hundred leading Republicans throughout the state receive "Skirmish Line" about every two weeks, which informs them of activities in other counties and contains hints on how to improve their local operations. Every member of the Executive Committee receives a weekly memo. The Republican publication FACTS is enjoying a larger readership than ever.

The enlarged Women's Federation and Young Republican organizations have been assigned important roles in the campaign. They have been joined by TAPS (Teen Age Republicans), and 150 members of this group served as pages during the state convention.

The key to success still rests, however, with the county leaders, including Milwaukee. If the massive outpouring of effort continues as it has the past few months, and if there is proper direction for this effort in all of our counties, the Republicans will win an impressive victory in Wisconsin.

Talbot Peterson, chairman of the Republican Party of Wisconsin, acts as Madison guest columnist today for this newspaper's regular Madison correspondent.

Malicious Lie Sole Property of Adults

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: The "scientific approach" is nearly useless in discovering the nature of man, since science is an objective tool for detecting the nature of physical things, and it is only through a subjective involvement with human beings that we gain insight into the character of man.

The great majority of lies told by children are designed to escape punishment from adults: the so-called "malicious lie" is extremely rare among children and may be classified as an adult phenomenon.

The written word, in itself, is an imperfect medium of communication, because it cannot convey tone; does the phrase, "You're a smart one," indicate envy, pride, admiration, contempt, irony, disgust, or some mixture of these? Yet, one hearing this phrase, rather than reading it, would have no difficulty in grasping the precise meaning from the tone.

One of the most disconcerting, and perplexing, aspects of middle-age is waking up one morning and discovering that we have become more like one of our parents than like ever dreamed was possible:

and, in many cases, it is not the parent we admired most. What we cannot understand about the Russians is their intense idealism, which is precisely what makes them so dangerous to the world; for, as Chesterton said in another connection, "So much of an idealist about his ideals that he can be a ruthless realist in his methods."

We know, and thus think ourselves superior to the Middle Ages, that men cannot be tortured into believing; but we have not learned that men cannot be argued into believing, for argument is a form of intellectual force that has no more power to convert than has physical force.

Funeral orations represent the hopes of mankind, and are not to be believed as biographies of what the dead men were like, but as poems of what they should have been; they are not to be despised as hypocrisy, but recognized as aspiration.

A woman who can't forget she is wearing a new gown destroys its effectiveness by her very awareness — for the beauty that is in the eye of the beholder must not be marred by self-consciousness on the part of the object.

We delude ourselves that we want to implant "honesty" in our children; what we really want is to imbue them with our particular kind of dishonesty, with our culture's dishonesty, our class's dishonesty, our cult's dishonesty.

Potomac Fever— by Jack Wilson

Goldwater twisted his left leg a week ago, and still has a small limp in it. It's not serious — he seldom stands on that one.

The picture of President Johnson on his boat explains why he kept reporters away during his holiday. Everybody's nervous the first time out in a topside swimsuit.

Negroes are moving swiftly to test restaurants for compliance with the civil rights law. Results are generally good. The danger now is not ax handles — it's indignation.

Goldwater to Stress Conservatism as Issue

had come when "an honorable man can say that the sense of this great convention has become abundantly clear." His view had not prevailed, he conceded.

"The Republican party must now emphasize its unity, not its differences," Scranton said. His voice was drowned out from the convention floor and from the galleries.

"We must now be about the business of defeating Democraticism," he continued. "I shall work for and fully support the ticket chosen by this convention."

He added that the platform, which he had tried unsuccessfully to amend, "is broad enough for all of us to stand upon and it is strong enough that we can build upon it."

Michigan Gov. George Romney, withdrawing as a favorite son candidate, said the delegates were witnessing "the rebirth of Americanism in America."

Although all the other candidates quit, there still remained on the official record to controvert the convention's shouted approval of Scranton's unity motion, 17 votes for Scranton, 31 for Rockefeller and 51 abstentions from New York.

To soften the bitter attacks they had made on him in the pre-convention campaign, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Scranton hurried to Goldwater's headquarters in a so-called "read the thousands" of words he (Johnson) has spoken against anti-poll tax legislation, the WEPC and equal accommodations.

Rockefeller pushing his way through a crowd of newsmen, said "I congratulated him on a tremendous victory." Scranton long time and I have nothing personal against him," Goldwater read a television-radio water said Wednesday night.

Asked if he thought he could defeat Johnson, the senator replied "I wouldn't be in the campaign if I didn't think I could win."

Scranton said as he left that he was sticking to his determination not to become a vice presidential candidate. All the signs indicated he had not been offered the post.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who refused to aid publicly any of Goldwater's opponents, also was on the calling list.

Democratic Statement
All of these efforts to substitute harmony for dissension among the Republicans brought a speedy blast from Democratic but being scared stiff," he declared.

Goldwater, who had said he wants to give Americans "a choice and not an echo," scheduled a morning meeting with his nomination campaign finance committee. Dan Gaihey of Minnesota, who heads the group, said only about $200,000 remained of an estimated $4 million raised.

After that Goldwater planned to take up with the 50 Republican state chairmen some proposals to unify the party behind his general election campaign. Miller said that the senator might canvass the group for opinions on the vice presidential nomination.

The convention headed into a getaway session today at which it was scheduled to verify by its balloting Goldwater's choice of his running mate.

Goldwater's acceptance speech, on which he began work several days ago, would follow that of the vice presidential nominee's acceptance and wind up the convention.

The presidential candidate scheduled a meeting for Thursday with the GOP National Committee to tell members his choice for their new chairman. He was expected to be Denison Kitchel, Arizonan who has directed his campaign from the beginning.

With the party organization firmly in his control, Goldwater is expected to move later to call a summit meeting of party leaders. Presumably these would include Eisenhower, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Scranton, Rockefeller, Miller and various others.

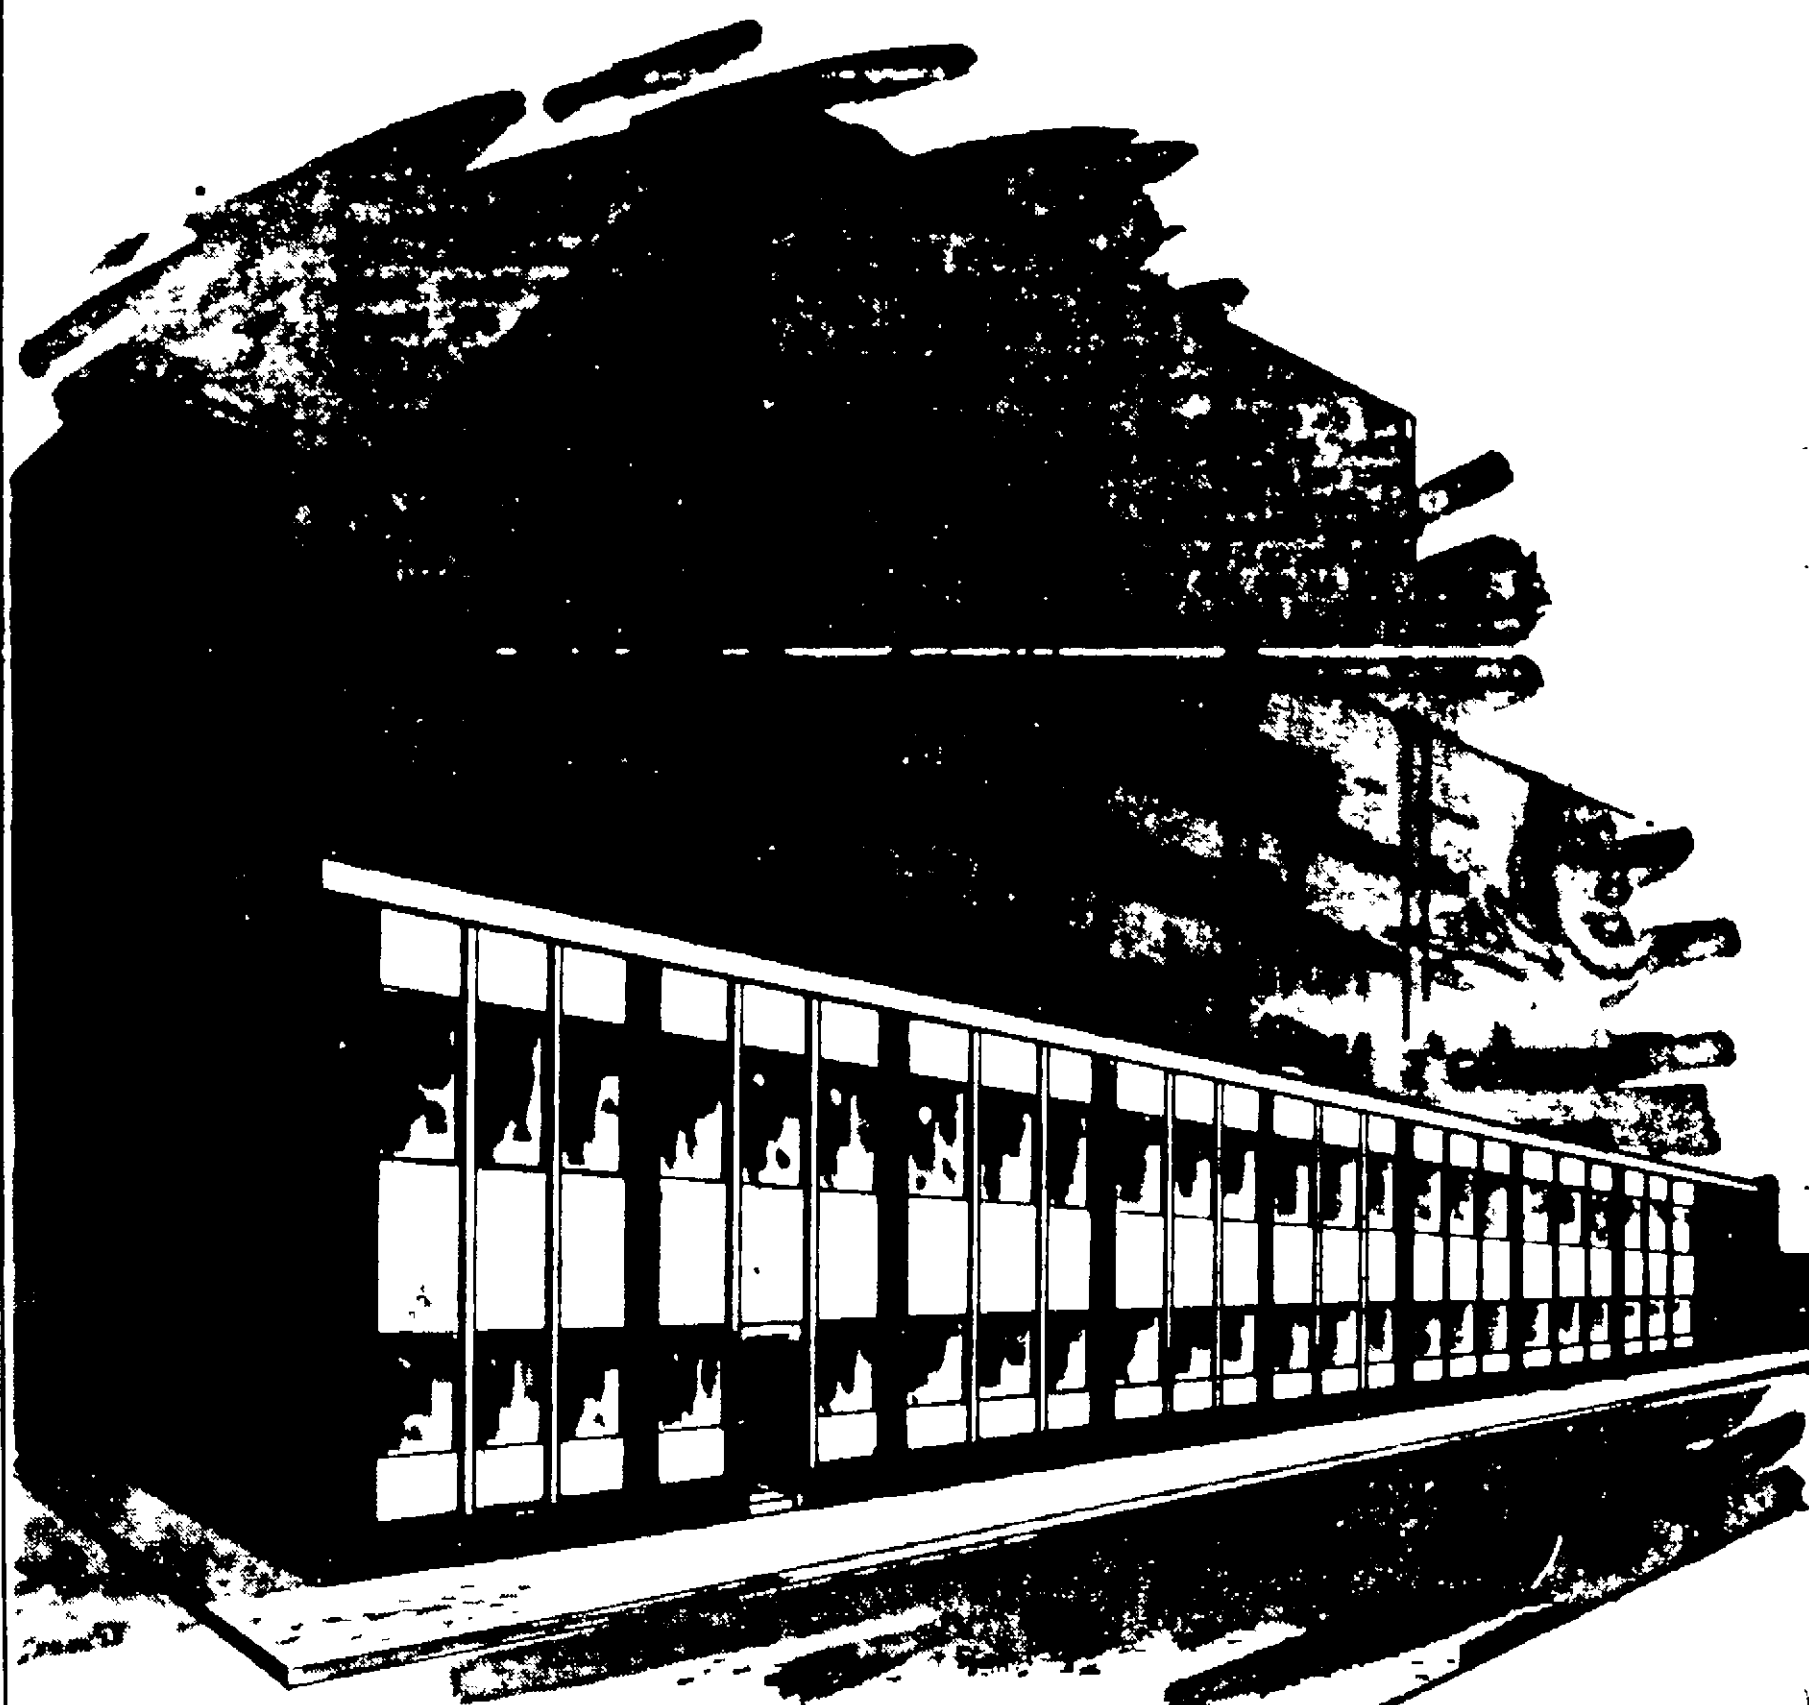

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Senate Republican leader, his hair bouncing and perspiration beading his face, thundered to the delegates that Goldwater can win.

Calling Goldwater a man of courage, loyalty and faith, Dirksen declared:

"Let neither doubt nor defeatism impair our forces and our strength. The time is here for America to retrieve its self-respect. I believe that through the firmness, through the sure hands, Barry Goldwater could retrieve it."

Dr. Milton Eisenhower, brother of the former president, had a different version. He said in placing Scranton's name in nomination that Goldwater could not defeat President Johnson in November.

Outlining the perils of the nuclear age, Eisenhower said: "In the face of such a terrible absolute power we must nominate a man who is bold but never rash—a man who is firm, but never inflexible. God help us if we are seduced by the tempting fantasy that there are easy answers to these complex problems."

Goldwater—Boy, Senator, GOP Hopeful

Who Ever Dreamed He'd be a presidential candidate? This photo of Republican presidential hopeful Sen. Barry Goldwater was taken when the candidate was two years old.

Republican Presidential Candidate Barry Goldwater was 16 years old when this photo of him leaning on the family auto was taken in 1925.

Barry Goldwater Demonstrated his athletic prowess in 1927, when this photo was taken of him while he was captain of the state champion swimming team at Stanton military Academy in Virginia.

Taking Time Out from his duties as an executive in the family department store in Phoenix in 1945, Barry Goldwater took his son, Barry Jr., on a camping trip. Barry Jr. now is one of his father's leading GOP presidential campaign workers.

Sen. Barry Goldwater was sworn into national office for the first time in January, 1953, when he took the oath of office as Arizona's junior senator from the late former Vice President Alben Barkley. In center is Frank A. Barrett, Republican senator from Wyoming.
